Lancaster Farming

Serving The Central and Southeastern Pennsylvania Areas

Vol. 20 No. 45 | Lancaster Farming, Saturday, Sept. 27, 1975 | $3.00 Per Year

Persistent rain eliminated many of the events at the Ephrata and West Lampeter Fairs this past week, but at the Farm Show Complex, where this scene was taken, the Pennsylvania All-American went on until rising waters forced the closing of the show on Thursday night. Water was knee-deep here and threatening the barns. By 3:00 a.m. Friday it was entering the barns and cattle were taken away — about 500 head were tied on the State Hospital Grounds. By 7:30 all of the animals except for one bull had been moved out. There was about 10 inches of water in the large arena and about 1½ feet in the barns. Milk trucks had trouble getting in to pick up the milk from as many as 700 milking animals.

Grant Heilman leaving area

By Peggy Frailey

Grant Heilman, one of the country's foremost agricultural photographers and a fighter for preservation of farmland, is going to leave Lancaster County and move to Colorado, where he and his wife, noted artist Barbara Whipple, will build a new home on a slope of the Rocky Mountains.

The reason — simply put, Heilman no longer wants to live in what he terms the "creeping metropolism" that has invaded Lancaster County.

He and his wife will open a combined studio in the small town of Buena Vista - population about 2500 — and take their chances with the wide open spaces that have become so rare in the east.

Meanwhile Heilman will continue to run the photography studio he owns on West Lincoln Avenue, still doing the bulk of his own photographic work from his new western home, and making periodic trips back to Lititz. The actual operation of the plant will be done by his present staff there.

Although a lot has been done in recent years to try to preserve Lancaster County, it is not enough and it came too late, Heilman maintains.

"The dye is cast in Lancaster County," he said. "We'll take the alternative."

"Lancaster County is not facing up to what are becoming uninteresting living conditions," the photographer-naturalist said during an interview this week. "A great deal has been done here, but not enough to keep it from being uncomfortable (living conditions) — and since we have the option to move, we are going to."

"I suppose I will be criticised by some for saying this about Lancaster County, but it's how I feel," Heilman said.

For a number of years now, Heilman has been a strong advocate of preservation, and has used his voice to try to arouse public interest in environmental situations. He chose this route deliberately, he explained, believing he could be of more use as a "thorn in the side" rather than sitting on boards and commissions.

His voice has been heard

Renowned naturalist photographer, Grant Heilman, whose pictures appear far and wide on and in agricultural publications, plans to move to Colorado next June because of the urbanization which is taking place in Lancaster County. He's shown above taking a close-up of a cocoon on a pine tree behind his studio in Lititz.

Class I milk price to $11

By Dieter Krieg

WITMER — "It looks like we'll have an (approximately) $11.00 Class I milk price by the end of the year," said Boyd Gartley, director of member and public relations for Inter-State Milk Producers Cooperative. Speaking here at the annual dinner meeting for District 6, Gartley reminded the dairymen that "we must be cautious about the price going up too fast because of consumer resistance." Someone near the head table responded with a loud and clear "right on."

Noting that advertising is paying off, Gartley told the capacity crowd that Order 4 has recorded the highest increase of Class I sales of any Order in the country. He also added that the past fiscal year went down as "the best financial year in the history in the cooperative." Commenting briefly on advertising, the Inter-State official observed that "the in thing" nowaday is the "fresh and natural," which is what milk is all about.

Giving Inter-State Cooperative members reason to pat themselves on the back, Gartley said that their cooperative is "the most efficient

Youth pursues farming career

By Melissa Piper

PENN MANOR — "Farmers have made this country what it is today and I'd like to be a part of that tradition." Although these words might have been spoken by a long time farmer, they actually came from a young man who is just beginning his career in the field of agricultural production.

Ron Hunt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hunt, Millersville, has already been active in agriculture for three years although he is presently a senior at Penn Manor High School. Being an FFA member since his freshman year, the young man has taken projects in veal calves, and market a well as breeding swine.

Ron has taken his FF work seriously not only trying his best at doing successful projects but als in his activities. The Penn Manor Youth has been member of the State poultr judging team that compete in Kansas City, a member o the award winning meat judging teams and also o the State dairy judging tean that entered competition a the Eastern States Expo i Springfield, Mass.

Ron has been on th parliamentary procedur team and has received th Star Greenhand and Sta Chapter Farmer awards

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

SEPT. 29 - OCT. 5, 1975

Trees now Indian princes, but soon will turn to ghosts.

Be careful in the woods now; it's hunting season in many places . . . Ford introduced Model "T" Oct. 1, 1908 . . . New moon Oct. 4 . . . Scallops are in season . . . Average length of days for the week, 11 hours, 44 minutes . . . First Cinerama in NYC, Sept. 30, 1952 . . . Derby hats introduced Oct. 2, 1840 . . . Affectations of knowledge are more odious than the lack can be.

Old Farmer's Riddle: What works better when it has something in its eye? (Answer below.)

Ask the Old Farmer: My husband's family used to operate a grist mill where the fine flour was said to be "bolted." What is this process? P. C., Dallas, Texas.

"Bolting" as applied to flour or meal simply means sifting to remove the coarser particles.

Home Hints: To hide scratches on natural wood cabinets and woodwork, rub with mineral oil on a soft cloth. It covers the scratch by assuming the shade of the woodwork and polishes the wood at the same time.

Riddle answer: A needle

NEW CAGE FEEDING SYSTEM

Feed is your biggest out of-pocket cost. Cut it just 1 percent without production - and that's money in your pocket.

Our new cage feeder helps you do just that. Because it uses a new feeding principal poultrymen have proved will work.

It's our experience birds prefer feed that hasn't been picked over. They eat more, convert feed better and are more productive. So we designed our new cage feeding system to deliver fresh, fine ground feed+ or crumbles to every bird in a closed tube.

Weekly 51 - Cattle - Compared with the previous weeks close -

SLAUGHTER STEERS AND HEIFERS Firm to 50 cents higher although midweek trading somewhat of a forced affair on meager supplies in the face of astagnated carcass trade. Cows opened firm but late trade 50-1.00 lower, bulls steady.

Four Day Receipts 14,800 as compared 18,200 previous week and 14,000 a year ago. Slaughter steers approximately 33 pct, heifers 30 percent, cows 15 pct, and feeders for Friday auction 20 pct. Fed cattle prices showed little day to day price variation as supplies continued of moderate proportions due partially to the press of field work under ideal weather conditions. This marked the fourth successive week of relatively stable conditions which contributed to an orderly marketing pattern. A fair percentage of Choice steers on offer but High - Choice and Prime scarce. Heifer supply included modest volume Choice and Prime.

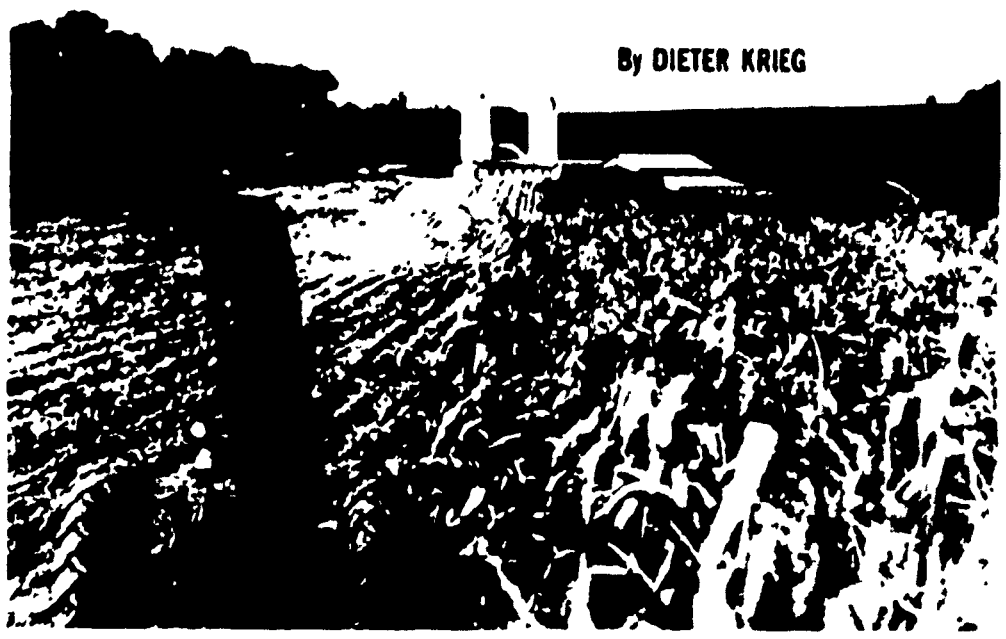
LIFE on the farm

By DIETER KRIEG



By Dieter Krieg

I was a happy young dairyman when Phyllis arrived She was one of six cows I had purchased at a sale

The first of the group to come fresh, I was pleased with her production on the first test. over 60 pounds of milk with a 4 4 per cent butterfat content That's no record-breaking performance, but it was a good start for a cow which had been fresh for only 12 days.

Phyllis, a gentle animal with an appetite for both feed and affection, received both She had a topline which was straight as a ruler, good feet and legs, and a nearly perfect udder Her registry papers were received with pride and she was beginning to make a fine place for herself in the herd

"Get up, Phyllis," I said one morning, tapping her gently on the rump with the end of the milking machine strap "It's time for you to get up" She just looked around at me and made no effort to get up "Oh, alright, go ahead and loaf a while longer, I'll come back to you," I told her.

About twenty minutes later I was at the end of the row and it was Phyllis' turn to be milked, whether she wanted to get up or not I ordered her to get up and tapped her rump once more Phyllis continued to be "lazy." Friendly persuasion didn't work, and neither did force. She managed to prop herself up on her front legs a time or two but seemed to be paralyzed in the rear

My mind searched her brief history on the farm for a possible reason for this condition The only thing I could think of was that the largest cow in the barn, Joyce, — who had been in heat — may have injured Phyllis while "riding" her The diagnosis from the veterinarian was a cracked pelvis.

We managed to get the injured animal up and Doc gave her a good chance of recuperating We worked with her several times a day, always fearful that she might lose her balance, fall, and go down permanently. Much of the sweat protruding from our faces and arms wasn't from the physical strain, but from the worrisome thought which occupied our minds.

Phyllis did fall one day, and she never got up again. We moved her to the end of the barn and worked with her - hoping that a miracle would take place. She looked at us with sad eyes from day to day, and we who worked with her returned her sad expression

The dollar loss would be missed So would her friendly personality. She was the kind of cow whom any dairyman could be pleased with. Her loss was one of those unfortunate things which no dairyman is immune to

Farm Commentary

By Dieter Krieg

Last week it was suggested in this column that a long-term agricultural trade agreement with Russia would be of benefit to this country because it would allow for some advance planning rather than highly erratic marketing changes

However, it was also suggested that the United States should be very cautious in signing any agreement with the Soviet Union Some reasons for that will be presented today.

To begin with, I'd just as soon suspend all trading with the Soviet Union to bring some economic pressure on their government, but if we must have trade in order to keep our country's financial ledgers in the black, then let's have it with some regularity to avoid the disasters which were a direct result of the infamous 1972 wheat deal

"When the most productive nation in the world reaches the point where its economy is so out of control that traditional abundance becomes scandalous scarcity, then I think it's a disgrace equal to Watergate ... the communists got our grain, the administration got credit for the sale, the speculators got the profit, and the rest of us got the bill"

That quote comes from an address two years ago by Lt. Gov. Lester Maddox of Georgia, and I think it accurately describes the turmoil the U S economy experienced after the ill-planned wheat deal in 1972 Senator Henry Jackson of Washington called the deal a "monumental blunder"

In short, we were taken — farmers and consumers alike American farmers, whether they realize it or not, are the ones who have kept this country's trade balance tipped in our favor And they've done so to the tune of billions of dollars. Meanwhile, however, industry has been unable to keep up. We import cars, radios, clothing, meat, dairy products and just about everything else because of inefficiency and unwillingness

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W ALTHOUSE

THE SIGN!

Lesson for September 28, 1975

Background Scripture: Genesis 6 through 9:17. Devotional Reading: Isaiah 49:1-16.

The Great Flood is a theme that is found in the ancient literatures of many eastern peoples. The ancient Sumerians and Babylonians shared the Hebrew belief that at one time a great flood had covered the earth and almost extinguished the human race. There are reports that some cultures in the Southeast Pacific also have legends of a similar catastrophe.

The Wickedness of Man Was Great

The Hebrews interpreted this great event with religious significance. It was not something that "just happened," but an event that could be traced to the relationship between man and God.

First of all. the cause.

The Hebrews saw the Great Flood as a consequence of the evil of men. The writer of Genesis tells us: "The Lord saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually" (6:5). So God tells Noah: "I have determined to make an end of all flesh; for the earth if filled with violence through them: behold, I will destroy them with the earth ..." (6:18).

Evil was rampant in the earth and it would have dire consequences for mankind. There would be many times in the history of Israel when the people of that land would interpret all kinds of disasters as the result of human sin.

So, secondly. the consequences.

Initially it seems as if God is going to wipe out all mankind, but it is soon obvious that that is not his intention. There will be a remnant: Noah, his family, and an arkful of animals. For God finds worth in Noah and he will rebuild on that foundation.

The idea of "the remnant" would also be a continuing theme in the story of the people of Israel. Again and again there was massive destruction, but God always spared a remnant with which to rebuild.

The Grace of God Was Greater

Then, finally: the divine "However".

So, although the evil of man was monumental, and although the consequences that would result were catastrophic, nevertheless there would be an even greater reality than these: the grace of God!

God had every good reason to wipe man off the map, including Noah. Justice demanded that humanity be obliterated. But beyond both reason and justice there was God's redeeming grace, given to the remnant and beneficent to succeeding generations of men.

"Behold," said God to Noah, "I establish my covenant with you and your descendents after you, and with every living creature that is with you ..." (9:9) .... "never again shall all flesh be cut off by the waters of a flood ..." (9:11).

The ancients regarded the rainbow with fear for they regarded it as the bow from which God shot his arrows of vengeance and retribution. But God would change that feared symbol to a sign of hope: "I set my bow in the cloud and it shall be a sign of the covenant between me and the earth" (9:13).

Many years later, God took another dreaded object, the cross, and made of it an eternal sign of his grace.

To Prepare Corn Cribs

The new corn crop will soon be ready to go into storage; on many fainrs there is some old corn left in the crib or in the storage facility. The old corn should be removed from the storage and then the area cleaned and sprayed with an insecticide to eliminate possible grain insects. Reports indicate considerable amounts of weevil and other cereal insects in stored corn. It is not a good practice to place new corn on top of old corn. The use of a Malathion spray in the bin or crib should be a "must" before storing new corn.

To Control Rodents

Weather conditions will soon turn colder when rats and mice will be migrating toward buildings. If they find a suitable place to set up house-keeping, they will stay and be a menace for the rest of the winter. I'd suggest that the premises be cleaned up and all possible nesting places be removed. Stone walls or foundations should be repaired and "pointed" with concrete; Broken floors or piles of junk or other materilas offer nesting places. Rodents do considerable damage to feed supplies, are a fire hazard, and may carry contagious disease. Poison bait stations should also be used in connection with these good sanitation practices. Do not put up with rats or mice because they will surely decrease farm profits and efficiency.

To Save Pigs

With the price of feeder pigs and market hogs, producers should consider spending more time with sows and gilts at farrowing. With cold weather around the corner, pigs that are dried off and placed on a nipple will have a better chance to survive; this is especially true with the smaller weaker pigs. Sows and gilts having problems farrowing can be helped by the producer if he or she is present; many pigs die because the sow takes too long to farrow. Gilts farrowing their first litter may be very nervous and bite or tramp pigs at farrowing, if an attendant isn't present to help save the pig from their mother's actions. Extra time spent with the sow at farrowing will surely pay good dividends.

To Observe New Cattle

Many barns and feedlots are being filled with newly purchased feeder cattle. Death losses are averaging between 1 and 2 percent, and most infections "Break" 3 to 7 days after the cattle arrive in the feedlot. Therefore, it is vital that feeders give special attention to the cattle for the first week to 10 days. A separate pen should be available for cattle that are "slow" or sick. A catch pen with a head-gate will make treatment much easier and eliminate the need for excitement and stress. Good grass hay immediately after arrival is a very good way to get them started. Be on the alert for animals that do not eat or drink and stay by themselves. Prompt treatment will save most of them. Observe the cattle at least four times daily and protect your investment.

Weed Control

In order to do a good job of chemical weed control, it is important to select herbicides that are effective on the weeds in a given field or on a given farm. The time to start controlling the Bicentennial weeds of '76 is this fall. Start by taking a survey of the fields to observe the weeds that were not killed this past season. Weeds that are uncontrolled should be identified and possibly another weed control used next year. It is difficult to get one herbicide that will control all weeds without harming the wanted crop. Different materials and methods may be needed depending upon the weed. Assistance in weed identification and materials to use is available at our Extension Office.

Farm

brought on by labor unions. What pays for the flow of foreign goods into this country? Our soybeans, wheat and corn. American farmers are making it possible for cheaper commercial items to be brought in. He is, in a way, subsidizing the economy. That's no sin. The farmer is efficient and he deserves a lot of credit for it.

But the farmer's efficiency also boomerangs That's especially true for the dairymen and cattle feeders. They're competing for American grain on the one hand, paying higher prices alongside of highly subsidized foreign products. We're expected to buy high and sell low. A quick check in the grocery store's canned meat and dairy products section will tell you what I mean.

That's been the case for years, but when Russia only enters deals and treaties for its own benefit and once that purpose is fulfilled it ignores the agreement. It only took the Soviets a couple of days to tell the West it didn't feel bound by the recent Helsinki agreements in which Ford granted the Soviet Union just about everything they asked for while we got nothing but a piece of paper.

As a member of a family which fled a communist nation because of a total lack of freedom — where citizens are shot in the back for wanting to leave the country, where private ownership is illegal, where God is officially denied, and where government rules by instilling fear — I wouldn't want to be the farmer who feeds the East German border guard who fills a man's chest with bullets; or the guerilla who murders night and day in Southeast Asia. I object to programs America has which has allowed communist tyrants to stay in power. If we'd make it tougher for them to get our food, then maybe it would force them to relax their grip on the hundreds of millions of people which it enslaves.

Here's a thought for you: farmers in communist lands are known to sabotage their own crops in order to create a situation which would bring a change in government. Then America comes along and pours in the groceries, helping the tyrants stay in power.

The Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show, held at the Farm Show Complex last Monday had contestants showing animals from every part of the state. More than 1,700 cows, heifers, calves and bulls were exhibited during the various shows that were held, including the Pennsylvania All-American which ended yesterday. Steve Spencer of Penn State's dairy science staff noted that 700 of the animals are milking and an estimated 110,000 pounds of milk will be produced by them during the week. Bulk tanks were emptied twice a day with the product going to Hershey Chocolate Corporation.

Don't store gasoline

Some people may try to beat the rising prices by storing large amounts of gasoline. However, they may create more problems than they solve by doing so.

The gasoline stored on a farm or around a house becomes an expensive convenience if the storage period is longer than six months.

First, the fuel contains a blend of several parts, one of which is extremely volatile and provides engines with easy starting. It evaporates rapidly. When the storage tank is exposed to the sun, most of this ingredient is lost in about 60 days.

Secondly, gas becomes gummy — similar to shellac — after it "ages". This gum may stop up the carbureter and cause engine deposits. It also may cause damage when mixed in small amounts with fresh gasoline.

In addition, seasonal changes in grades of gasoline spell trouble if fuel blended for one season is carried over in storage tanks until another season. Summer grade fuel may cause hard starting during cold weather.

ACOUSTA CAB

MILWAUKEE, Wis. - The ACOUSTA cab, proven to be the quietest farm tractor cab built in the industry, is described in a new brochure from the Agricultural Equipment Divisions of the Allis-Chalmers Corp.

Recent results of an independent, nationally recognized test showed that the ACOUSTA cab, mounted on Allis-Chalmers Model 7040 and 7060 farm tractors, achieved 78.0 and 78.5 dBA ratings, respectively, at maximum power application and with pressurizer fans at full volume. These record ratings surpass the previous industry low level of 79.5 dBA held by the Allis-Chalmers Models 7030 and 7050.

The literature details the designs and techniques used to achieve the low decibel ratings, including a specially designed engine cylinder block and a thicker front mounting plate to reduce noise and structural vibrations, non-parallel surfaces to prevent sound reverberation, cab isolation mounts to eliminate metal to metal contact, flexible control cables instead of rod controls, and thick insulation and acoustical foam.

Also described in the literature are the comfort and convenience aspects of the ACOUSTA cab.

For a copy of the ACOUSTA cab literature, No. AED 418-7505, contact the Allis-Chalmers Corp., Agricultural Equipment Divisions, Box 512, Milwaukee, Wis. 53201.

Rains put damper on West Lampeter Fair

By Melissa Piper

Rain, rain and more rain greeted the 51st celebration of the West Lampeter Fair, which opened to the public on Wednesday, Sept. 24.

For the first time since the opening of the fair, many of the agricultural events planned for early in the week, were postponed to Friday afternoon (following the publication of this edition of Lancaster Farming.)

The hog show, an annual favorite had originally been scheduled for Wednesday afternoon but was postponed along with the usually heavily attended dairy show.

Seas of ankle-high water and thick mud put the damper to fair attendance but exhibitors still brought their goods for diaplay. The foul weather didn't keep away the exhibitors who brought outstanding diaplays of fruits, vegetables and flowers. Canned goods, baked goods and tobacco still lined the exhibition halls calling attention to their variety of colors.

Admist much mud, the FFA members from Penn Manor and Lampeter-Strasburg High Schools weighed in the hogs and beef entries under the direction of Gus Birchler, ag instructor at Penn Manor.

Although the water crept into the main exhibition tents, the machinery dealers and advertisers braved the poor conditions and stayed with their diaplays hopeful of increasingly good weather.

While the weather didn't cooperate to its best ability, spirits didn't damper under all the rain. Donning raingear and boots, many people did attend the popular event which has become part of Lancaster County's heritage for the past 50 years.

Greider Wins Beef Contest

Although rain, chilly weather and seas of mud, kept many of the visitors away from the West Lampeter Fair on Wednesday evening, many individuals did brave the weather to view the popular baby beef competition.

4-Hers and FFA members from the area worked diligently despite the weather to primp and show their animals.

Jim Greider, Columbia R2, exhibited the grand champion steer of the show. Greider's crossbred had been selected as the first place animal in the class.

Nancy Herr, Penn Grant Rd., Lancaster, exhibited the reserve grand champion steer which had also placed second in the crossbred class.

Debbie Grider, Columbia R2, was awarded the first place honors in the junior showmanship contest, followed by Michelle Dean, Strasburg in second place.

In the senior showing competition, Robert Hess, Lancaster R6 placed first with Nancy Herr, Penn Grant Rd., Lancaster taking second place honors.

Other winners in the beef contest were as follows:

FFA Angus

1. Curtis Hess, 2. Charles Groff.

Hereford

1. Jay Shertzer.

Crossbred

1. Rick Hess, 2. Gary Long.

4-H Angus

1. Sharon Bare, 2. Michele Dean.

Hereford

1. Marcie Shank, 2. Joanne Shaub.

Crossbred

1. Jim Greider, 2. Nancy Herr.

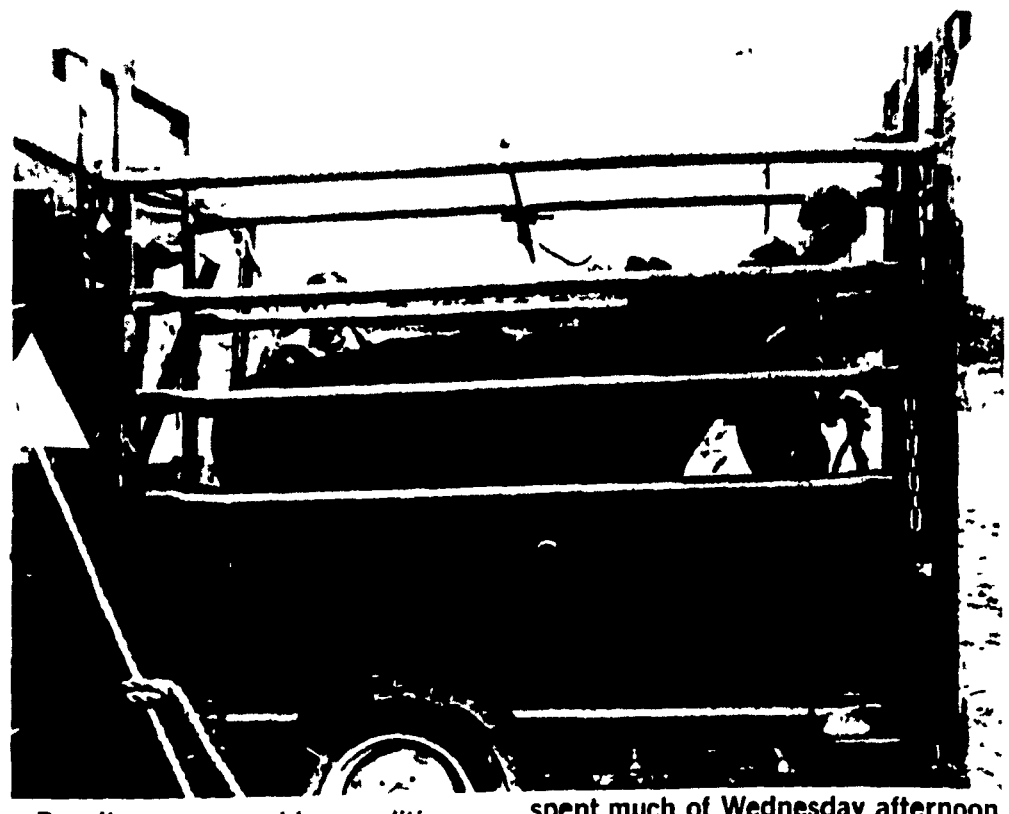
Judge for the event was Mac Smith, a graduate student in agriculture at Penn State.

Sheep Contest Gets Bogged Down

Exhibitors having sheep for the annual contest had to work around poor weather conditions in order to carry out their judging at the West Lampeter Fair on Wednesday.

Using facilities in livestock tent, the contest went off as scheduled with Dr. Robert Herr, Narvon, serving as judge for the competition. Placings in the contest follow:

Ram, 1 year and under 2 years - Merino, Calvert Farms, Centre County; Southdown, Tim Donough, Manheim.



Despite very muddy conditions, FFA'ers from Penn Manor and Lampeter - Strasburg High School, spent much of Wednesday afternoon weighing steers and hogs for the contests at West Lampeter Fair.

Montadales, Kathy Cartey.

Three ram lambs - Hampshires, Clyde Brubaker.

Ewe, 1 year and under 2 - Hampshire, Brubaker; Montadale, Cartey; Merino,

While weather conditions made it difficult to hold the annual sheep show, the exhibitors took it all in stride. Showing in a Shropshire class are (from left) Sarah Brubaker and her brother Kenneth and Harold Harster.

Lamb under 1 year - Suffolk, Mrs. Milton Morgan, Lancaster; Hampshire, Clyde Brubaker, Lancaster; Montadale, Kathy Cartey, Centre County; Merino, Calvert; Dorset, Ed Donough, Manheim; Southdown, Harpster; Shropshire, Harpster.

Champion Ram - Suffolk, Mrs. Morgan, Hampshire, Clyde Brubaker; Southdown, Ed Donough; Dorset, Tim Donough; Merino, Calvert;

Youth pursues

The youth is currently working toward his Keystone Degree.

Raises Swine

Ron has developed his swine projects into a small operation and is just beginning his herd of Duroc and crossbred swine.

The youth, which uses the facilities on his father's and grandfather's farms near Penn Manor, has six sows and the same number of gilts along with a boar.

Ron explained why he had chosen the swine operation over other fields of production. "I guess I could raise other livestock such as beef, but it seems like such a long time before there are any returns."

"In a swine operation you're at least able to get some money fairly quickly and then gradually add to your herd."

Ron's herd is primarily crossbreds but he does have a number of Duroc animals.

"I think that the Duroc animals are fast growing and look like the modern hog that everyone is growing for."

"I like them and think I'll stay with that breed."

Last year at the West Lampeter Fair, Ron bought a young gilt and raised her at his father's farm. This year, the sow came back to the fair with a litter of pigs and was entered in the "sow with a litter" class. The young man seemed quite proud of the fact that the animal had done well enough to show again.

Wants to Continue Farming

Ron, like many youths in southeastern Pa., had decided that farming is the career he will pursue. While the field may seem less than appealing to many young men his age, Ron explained his decision. "Without the farmer, there would be little to live on, he produces the meat and food for the people in this and other nations."

"I feel we have a duty to do what we can to help our country and farming is certainly one way to do it."

Hopefully, it will be the young men and women such as Ron that will sustain our agricultural production in the years to come, for in Ron's words, "farmers have made America what it is today."

While the rain during the West Lampeter Fair bothered many visitors, the pigs minded it just as much. Ron Hunt, a senior at Penn Manor High School tried to pacify his Durocs by offering them a little more feed.

Soil Samples

Fall months are an ideal time to take soil samples to determine next year's needs for lime, phosphorus and potash. Poorly planned lime and fertilizer programs often can be blamed on the rush of spring work when plowing and planting suddenly become urgent. If soil samples are taken now, there will be plenty of time to order the proper fertilizers and take advantage of early-order discounts.

Lime, as well as phosphorus and potash can be applied during fall months. Since lime is basically slow acting, early fall is a good time to apply it.

Also, at this time of year the ground is firm and suffers less from heavy spreading equipment.

Plant nutrient levels in the soil are always low at the end of the crop season. Fall is ideal for taking lime and plant food inventory of next year's crop needs.

Pa. Junior Dairy Sh

By Dieter Krieg

HARRISBURG - More than 1,700 dairy animals were in the Farm Show Complex this week for several dairy shows. Among them were 578 cows, heifers, calves and bulls exhibited by 4-H'ers and FFA students from all over the state who took part in the Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show on Monday. Those contestants who placed first or second in their classes became eligible to compete in the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show which began on Tuesday and finished yesterday.

Competition in the statewide show was limited to those youths who are enrolled in a qualified 4-H or FFA dairy project whose entries were blue ribbon winners at district shows earlier this year.

The Junior Holstein Show was split into two divisions - one for 4-H, the other for FFA. Some classes were further subdivided to accomodate the scores of entries which were received. Other breeds held a combined 4-H and FFA show.

Big winners from Lancaster Farming's prime coverage area included Russell Kline, Carol Balmer, Nedra and Samuel Yoder, Susan Seidel, Sharon Henley, Mark Kirk, Dale Maulfair, Wendy Shaw, Christine Gitt, Pattie Kay Ocker, Bill Henley, David Feidt, Dean Daubert, Harry Leininger, Debra Lou Miller and Edwin Brummer.

Russell Kline of Reinholds, a member of the Cloister FFA chapter, made it three years in a row as grand champion in the Holstein FFA show with his six year old daughter Paclamar Ivanhoe Black Eagle. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Kline, his cow, "Fought Land Eagle Ingra," has emerged as the winner of number of dairy shows previously. "Ingra" was also senior champion.

Carol Balmer, 14-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Balmer, Lititz R4, showed the junior champion in the Junior Guernsey Show. Her senior yearling, sired by "Nolichuckey T. C. Transfer," was one of a number of Lancaster County Guernsey entries to scoop up blue ribbons.

The Yoder children from Shoemakersville dominated the Milking Shorthorn Show, capturing every top spot except that for reserve champion showman and fitter which went to Deborah Miller of Saegerstown in Crawford County.

Nedra J. Yoder, 16, showing "Pinesedge King's Carita 3rd," a 5-year-old, captured the grand and senior championships. The same animal won the reserve grand championship at last year's show. The winning entry was sired by "Pinesedge Echo King" Nedra, a 4-H member for six years, also won champion fitter and showman awards. She is the daughter of Samuel Yoder, Sr.

Sammuel Yoder, 17, brother of Nedra, won reserve championship honors with his 5-year-old Milking Shorthorn, "Pinesedge M. E. Cherry 9th." Samuel, a 4-H entry, exhibited the grand champion in the 1972, 1973 and 1974 Junior Dairy Shows. The cow is sired by "Sunny View Minerva's Scho."

Nedra Yoder, showing another Milking Shorthorn entry, "Pinesedge Melody 2nd," a senior yearling, won junior championship honors. The junior champion was sired by "Pinesedge Geronimo."

Wendy Yoder, 13, a younger sister of the two Yoders who won major championships in Milking Shorthorn competition, captured the reserve junior championship with a junior yearling, "Pinesedge Cherry 14th." The reserve junior champion was sired by "Pinesedge Geronimo." The animal was a 4-H entry.

Berks Countain, Susan Seidel, was chosen as the winner of the over-all fitter-showmanship contest which saw no dividing line between 4-H'ers and FFA contestants. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Seiderl, Richalnd, Susan received a $100 cash award from Johnstown Sanitary Dairy in recognition of this achievement. She also showed the junior champion of the 4-H Holstein show - a two year old daughter of "Mas Swan Jupiter Champion."

The Henleys (Sharon and Bill) from Cochranville captured a few first places in the Ayrshire show. Sharon showed the senior and grand champion, while her brother showed the reserve junior champion animal. This was the second consecutive year that Sharon won the grand championship banner. Her four year old daughter of "Mackayr Super Maestre" was also chosen as senior champion. Sharon and Bill are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Kennard Henley.

Another successful Ayrshire exhibitor was Dale Maulfair, Jonestown. In addition to having the reserve grand and reserve senior champion, the 20 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Maulfair was also honored with the champion fitter and showman award.

Rounding out the top winners in the Ayrshire show is Pattie Kay Ocker of Shippensburg. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ocker, she showed the junior champion of the show - a two year old sired by Reidina Deubler's Victory.

Mary Kirk of Peach Bottom was chosen as the champion fitter and showman of the Guernsey show. She also placed a junior yearling into the second slot. A 4-H member for the past five years, Mary is the 17 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Kirk.

Wendy Shaw, 14, of Oley, Berks County, showing her 4-year-old Holstein cow, "Brynceed Dandy Dell," captured the grand and senior championships at the 20th Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show. Wendy, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Shaw, has been a 4-H member for seven years. The champion was sired by "Irvington Fury Dandy."

"Amply Rag Apple Ormsby Nellie," a 7-year-old Holstein cow owned by Christine Gitt, 13, of R2, Littlestown, captured the reserve grand and reserve senior championships in 4-H competition. The cow was sired by "Stookeyholm Crisscross Jerice." Christine is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gitt. She also won master fitter and showman awards.

David Feidt of Millersburg and Dean Daubert of Pine Grove showed the junior champion and reserve junior champion, respectively, in the Brown Swiss show. Feidt's entry was a junior yearling sired by "Rancho Rustic My Design," while Daubert showed a one year old daughter of "Willow Bridge Rose's Captain.

Edwin Brunner, a member of the Owen J. Roberts FFA chapter, took honors with his senior yearling by showing her as the junior champion of the FFA Holstein show. His cow, "Debonedd Kenny Sally," was sired by "Penn-Octo Kenny."

Harry Leininger of Ephrata scored with his showmanship and fitting abilities. An exhibitor in the Brown Swiss Show, he took reserve champion honors in the showing and fitting contest. The same distinction was placed on Debbie Lou Miller in the 4-H Holstein show. She is from Linglestown, Dauphin County.

Glencoe® MODEL SS "SOIL SAVER"

A NEW TWIST TO TILLAGE! A totally new and different approach to soil management! The Glencoe "SOIL SAVER" creates a non-compacted, "ridged" field that just naturally protects against erosion by wind and water! Instead of simply turning over the soil and leaving it bared to the elements, the "SOIL SAVER" opens up the land down deep to catch and hold available moisture. — Controls runoff, holds and stores rainwater for thirsty crops — soil surface is left open and blended with crop residues that protect precious topsoil! Cutting "slicers" cut up heavy stalks, leaves and root crowns and leave the soil ready to be turned under by the helical blades following. Designed so you can work your stubble immediately after harvest, generally without chopping or shredding.

See our display today!

cooperatives." It was no idle boast, as he brought along a complete financial report for each member to look at and among the findings was that 4.7 cents of the eight cents per hundredweight taken as patrons' contributions for capital will be returned.

Touching for a moment on the controversies which developed when independent shippers came under the Order 4 marketing umbrella, Gartley pointed out that his cooperative has undertaken a public relations campaign which included placing full-page ads in several newspapers and a Harrisburg area labor magazine. He also told the group that Inter-State has contacted 50 news centers throughout the country in an effort to make the consumers in town aware of rural problems.

Gartley's office announced recently that the Pennmarva organization has taken on two new members — Capitol Milk Producers and Lehigh Valley Cooperative. The new merger allows for all five members (Inter-State, Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers, and Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers are the others) to work together in communications and legislation, Gartley explained. He emphasized that the individual cooperatives will maintain their independence in areas other than that.

With milk prices being on every dairyman's mind, Gartley informed the group that the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board hearing - which started in 1972 and just ended last May - was the longest on record and in all that time accomplished nothing. Gartley had no newsworthy item to report from the PMMB except that "they haven't done anything."

A congressional hearing involving milk prices was held in Meadville last Friday, and a summary of the proceedings can be found elsewhere in this issue if I end up having the time to make a phone call or two in between covering fairs and shows going on this week. It was learned that Blair County dairyman and Inter-State member Willis Greaser testified at the meeting. He's the Blair Countian who visited the White House in January to tell his story to the President. He revealed to this reporter at that time that White House aids were sympathetic to the dairyman's cause. The suggested measures were shot down, however, when ranking congressmen put the pressure on President Ford and Agriculture Secretary Butz. Mrs. Greaser, who accompanied her husband to Washington and Meadville, came out of the White House meeting with the impression that the Treasury Department pulls a string or two at the Agriculture Department. She blamed the Treasury Department and its secretary (William E. Simon) for at least a part of the dairyman's problems.

Getting back to the Inter-State meeting at the Witmer Fire Hall, Gartley announced that nationally known columnist and radio commentator Paul Harvey will be the speaker at this year's annual meeting. Mr. Harvey is the fellow who has come to realize (among other things) that "the farmer finishes his 40-hour week by Tuesday noon." Gartley read a commentary written by Harvey which received an enthusiastic response from the audience and I intend to ask the author for permission to run it in this paper across a full page. Chances are many of you will want to save it.

That wraps it up for news of interest to dairymen no matter where they ship to — now for information pertaining primarily to District 6 members of Inter-State.

The district has been altered somewhat and there are now five locals instead of four. An election of officers was held and the following people emerged as presidents of the five locals:

Melvin Groff, president of New Holland - Leola local.

Harvey Heller, president of Witmer local.

Nathan Stoltzfus, president of Gap local.

Charles Rohrer, president of Christiana local.

Aaron Lapp, Jr., president of Paradise local.

Roy Book stays on as director of the district.

Most of the changes in the redistricting came in the Paradise and Christiana locals, with the new Gap local coming primarily out of those areas. The Christiana local will be shifted to create a new district (12) along with the Quarryville local.

District 6 had three 25-year members honored at the dinner meeting on Tuesday. They were: Marvin Hershey, Lester Landis and Harold Umble.

Other speakers for the evening included the Rev. Randall Heckman, and the past and present young cooperators of the district, Charles Rohrer and Robert Landis, respectively. Rohrer, who attended the National Cooperator Convention a year ago, encouraged dairymen less than 35 years of age to participate in the program.

Relaxation

A physician in the mid-1800's has this advice for farm wives: "Few things will bring a more certain and happy reward to a farmer than for him to remember his wife is a social being; that she is not a machine, and therefore needs rest and recreation, and change. No farmer will lose in the long run, either in money, health, or domestic comfort, enjoyment and downright happiness, by allotting an occasional afternoon, from midday until bedtime, to visiting purposes. Let him with the utmost cheerfulness and heartiness, leave his work, dress himself up, and take his wife to some pleasant neighbor's friend's, or kinaman's house, for the express purpose of relaxation from the cares and toils of home, and for the interchange of friendly feelings and sentiments. All of these, in turn, tend to cultivate the mind, to nourish the affections, and to promote the breadth of view in relation to men and things which elevates, and expands, and ennobles, and without which the whole nature becomes so narrow, so contracted, so barren and uninteresting, that both man and woman becomes but a shadow of what they ought to be."

Proper insurance coverage is a changing item these days and all real estate owners, and especially farmers, are urged to give some attention to their coverage. Prices are constantly on the upswing and to cover the original cost of a building is surely not enough; it's the replacement cost that should be covered as much as possible. Owners are urged to contact their insurance agent to check on the extent of their current coverage. Also, liability insurance is a very important thing and all farmers or employers should carry this coverage on their help and on others coming on their premises. Proper insurance is a definite part of good farm management and of general safe living in the seventies.

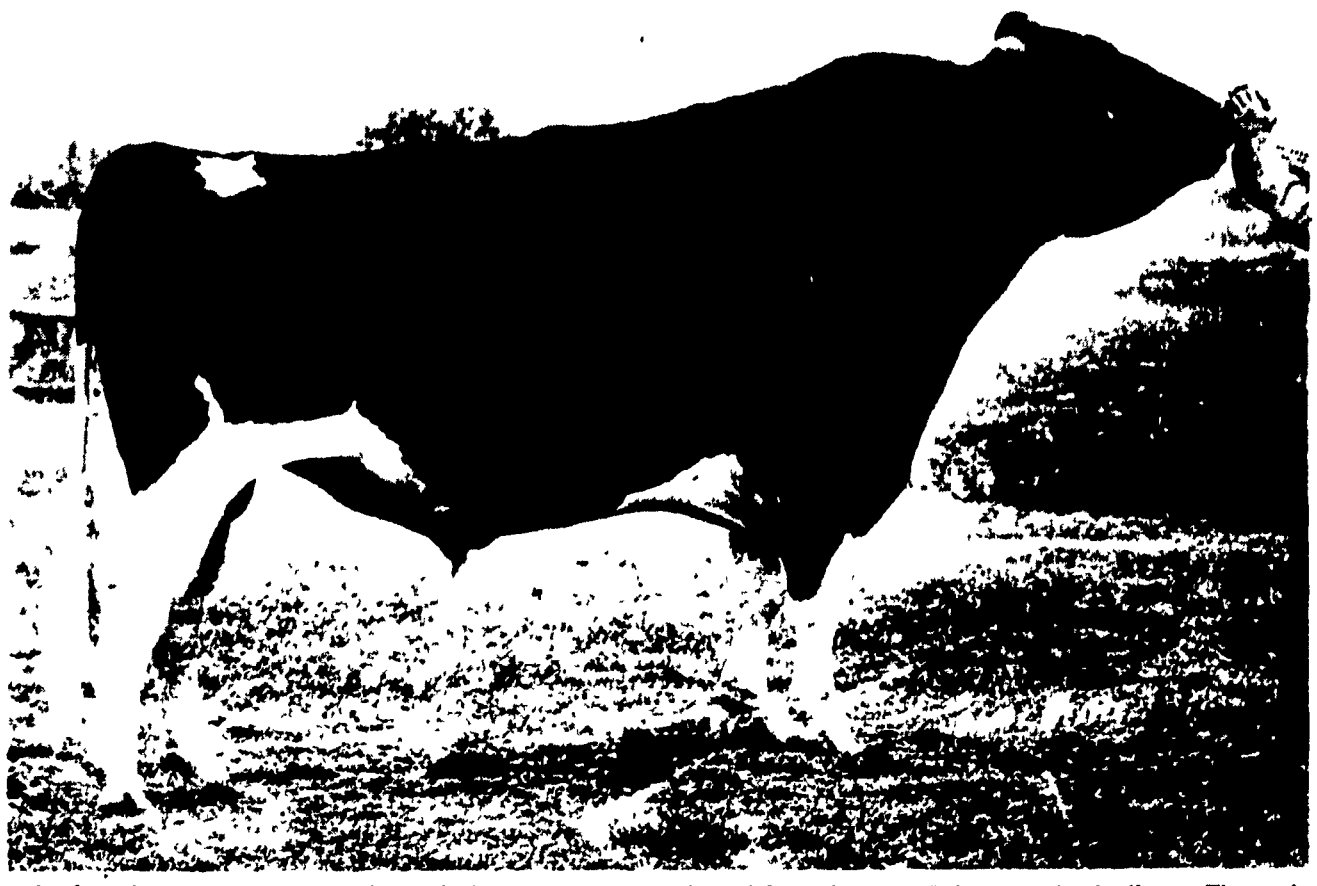
Barn spraying our business, not a sideline.



Hoping they got a lot of bull for their money are Robert Shore and Charles Myers who reportedly purchased this Holstein sire for $280,000. The championship bull, a son of Romandale Reflection Marquis, was purchased by Shore of Ontario, Canada, and Myers of Lancaster last Monday at the Hendricks County Fairgrounds, Indiana. The price is believed to be one of the highest sums ever paid for a bull. The 10-year old animal was among 10 bulls and 440 cows and heifers offered for sale at the Bottema Farms Memorial Sale, conducted by Hays Farms International of Ontario.

During the current agricultural administration at Harrisburg we have heard considerable about the value of agricultural research, and in many instances how it has been knocked and deflated. However, research is still badly needed and is a very valuable guide to future world food supplies. In the past, agricultural research has helped the 5 percent of farmers in this country feed the other 95 per cent; plus, millions in other countries.

Dr. Jim Beattie, Dean of the College of Agriculture at Penn State, feels that continued research will help our country continue to lead the world in food production.

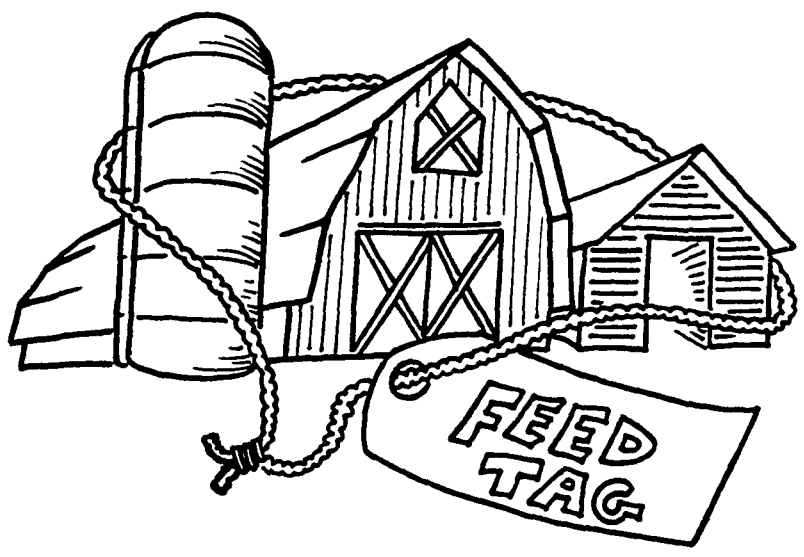
WHAT IS AGRI–KING?
WHAT MAKES THIS COMPANY DIFFERENT?

This is the second in a series of six articles aimed at answering these and other questions of interest to you, the farmer. The first article is available on request. Call 717-394-3047.



WHAT IS A BALANCED RATION?

Most people in the feed industry talk only about protein when considering a balanced ration. But to AGRI-KING a balanced ration means much more. Yes, balancing protein is important, but calcium, phorphorus, energy, vitamins and trace minerals must also be considered in the right amounts and ratios according to the needs of your breed of cattle and your milk production.

The only way to keep your total feed ration in balance is to periodically test the grain and roughages that are being fed, because these make up 85-90% of what you feed the cow. Only after the nutrient content and the amounts of these roughages being fed are determined, are we ready to start balancing your grain mix according to the needs of your cows. By using standard book value figures for the feeding value of your grains and roughages you have only a one in one thousand chance of having a balanced ration.

The protein, calcium, phosphorus, vitamins, trace minerals and energy are all interrelated in their work. It's a chain in which it takes one to utilize the other, and this chain is only as strong as its weakest link. Thus a well balanced feeding program contains the right amounts of protein (not too much but yet enough), the right amount of minerals (not too much, but yet enough), the right amount of vitamins (not too much, but yet enough), and the right amount of energy (not too much, but yet enough) to reach the high level of production and maintain the cows health we desire.

THIS FALL GIVE YOUR COWS A BREAK – CONTACT YOUR LOCAL AGRI–KING SERVICEMAN FOR MORE DETAILS ON BALANCING YOUR RATION THE AGRI–KING WAY!

Farm youth learns cultures of Switzerland

By Sally Bair
Farm Feature Writer

"Switzerland is a beautiful country with beautiful people," said Jane Alecxih with great enthusiasm. She was talking about her experiences this summer as a participant in the Youth for Understanding (YFU) international student exchange.

Jane, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter C. Alecxih, Lancaster R2, lived for nine weeks with a Swiss family and gained some real insight into the culture and the country.

The YFU program is financed through student fees, contributions and a grant from the State Department, and is designed "to promote better understanding and breakdown stereotypes," Jane said. It has been operating since 1951 when the first German and Austrian students came to this country. It is a two-way exchange program and has both a two month summer program and a year long exchange. Ann Arbor, Michigan is the program's home base.

Eighteen-year-old Jane became interested in the program through a newspaper article, but the international visitors at her home also "influenced" her, she said. Her family hosted the International Farm Youth Exchange delegate to Lancaster County from Turkey last year and they have hosted foreign visitors frequently over the years.

She was one of the first in this area to participate in the program and received a scholarship to help pay the cost.

Jane lived with a family in central Switzerland in the small town of Spiez on Lake Thun, not far from the capital city Bern. Her host father was a German and English teacher at a Gymnasium, "a cross between our high school and college," and her mother was a librarian.

Ringing up the cash register and assisting customers at Herr's is a part time job for Jane.

A host sister, Anne, 18, left for the United States two weeks before Jane did and is participating in the year-long YFU program in Minnesota. The two plan to meet during Anne's visit here. Jane said she is looking forward to seeing her host sister after she has a chance to experience life here.

There was another daughter in her host family, Regila, 21, who lived in her own apartment and taught school.

Jane called her host family "the nicest people" and characterized the Swiss people as being "unique and marvelous."

It was "so interesting," she said, because the people of Switzerland speak four languages - German, French, Italian and Romansch. She said, "The people who speak each language are different. But most of the people are like the people around here - sensible and solid. I found them very friendly."

Was the language a problem? "No," said Jane. "I spoke some German, but they spoke a Swiss-German dialect. Mostly we spoke English. I never had any problem. Almost everyone understands English."

In size, Switzerland is twice as big as New Jersey, and lies farther north than Pennsylvania. The landscape had many "rolling hills, like around here, but directly behind the hills were the Alps. It was an adjustment to come home and see the hills but no Alps," Jane said.

Homestead Notes

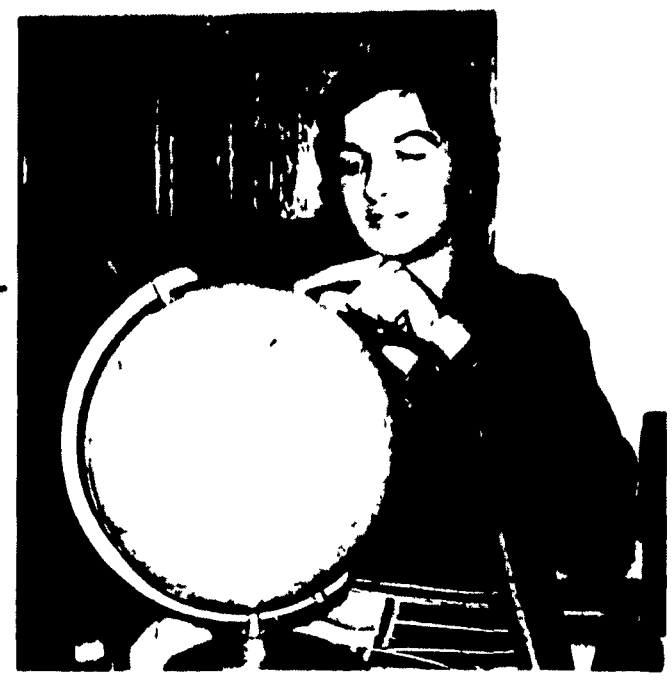
Jane had a lot of opportunity to see the entire country of Switzerland, because she traveled for nearly five of her nine weeks in the country. There was a two week family vacation to the Italian part of Switzerland, and one week she participated in a "studentwoche" through her host father's Gymnasium, during which the whole school had vacation and traveled to the French part of Switzerland. She was able to study music and German there.

She visited, on her own, an English-speaking school, L'Abri, also in the French part of the country and met many Americans studying there. And she had one fun week traveling with her host sister and other young people from school to "make a silent movie - a western about Sherlock Holmes." They camped out during the shooting of the film and she later viewed it and said, "It was a riot."

When she was at home with her family, Jane said, "I helped my host mother around the house, swam in the lake and went shopping or visited friends."

In their free time, Jane said, "My family read really a lot - books and magazines - everything. They also enjoyed going to the theater."

"There were many concerts in the community There was a harp and oboe concert and a trumpet and organ concert. It was so interesting because the people really appreciated the arts. They showed so much respect - nobody talked during the concerts," she said. "They were so intent. They really concentrated. And all kinds of people attended the concerts. Young people really enjoyed classical music. It was a very important aspect of their life."



Jane locates her host country on a globe, showing the lovely Switzerland where she spent nine weeks this summer.

The Swiss family also enjoyed discussing current events. Jane said her mother would often read something about the United States and then ask her if it was true or to explain it. One question dealt with slums. Jane said, "It was so hard to describe America because it is so big. I would try to explain that it is not like that everywhere. It really made me more aware of things."

She added, "The Swiss had a lot of stereotypes about the United States. They really think that every American is so wealthy. One reason they hold this opinion is that we have such big yards. My host family had no yard at all. Land there is so expensive."

According to Jane, a large dairy farm in that country would be one with 20 cows. She went on to say that while she was used to seeing huge cornfields, "everything there was on a smaller scale - tractors and cars were so small. In my first week I saw a lot of farm work being done by hand. Much grain was harvested by hand and carried on their backs in wicker baskets. I also saw a lot of horses working." All the land is put to use, she said, and even the steepest soil is used, mostly for vineyards.

"The Swiss really enjoyed the out-of-doors. They all have hiking boots, but I could barely keep up with my host father on our hikes. We went mountain climbing several times." They also enjoy skiing, but Jane said her family goes very seldom because "they hate crowds" and most slopes are filled with tourists and have become very expensive.

"We had no television," Jane said. For those who had sets, there are three channels, one speaking French, one Italian and one German, so the choice was rather limited.

Despite their official neutrality, the Swiss "really have opinions" about politics, Jane said. "They are especially interested in our country because they have a democracy too." One major difference, according to Jane, is that they rotate the presidency in four year terms from among elected representatives.

Should farmers join the picket line?

By Melissa Piper

I just cannot help wondering what the average American consumer would say if the farmers decided to go on strike In the past few weeks we've heard so much about other organizations, from football players to teachers, taking the "strike route" to increase their paychecks and improve working conditions But what about the farmer who probably works longer and harder - what will his reward be?

I can picture the typical city dweller sitting down to a breakfast of scrambled eggs (oops - eggs have too much cholestrol - remember?) well let's make it artificial bacon and black coffee and picking up his morning paper with a jerk While a banner headline declaring a farmer's strike might catch his attention, most papers, I'm afraid, would probably bury the story somewhere under the news of a new congressional investigation and the latest gory accident

If the urbanite did find it and managed to take the time to read such a story, I wonder what his reaction would be Most probably he'd shrug it off as non-essential for everyone knows that those "dumb" farmers, in the first place couldn't conceive of such an idea and in the second place they'd never be able to carry it off

If however, he was slightly concerned, maybe he'd take time to think of some of the implications a farmer's strike could mean

No more food, no more fiber and no more milk - that in my estimation would be a pretty frightening thought

Throughout the last few years we have seen some action by farmers to wake up the American consumer to their plight of high production costs and low returns

We've seen milk dumped into gutters, produce left to rot in the fields and calves slaughtered and dumped into pits While those actions have brought about some attention, it is usually only temporary without a lingering affect

Therefore many American consumers fail to realize that the farmer, who faces 18-hour work days and rising production costs often receives a disproportionate return

And despite his efforts to provide consumers, in this country and often abroad, with the best in wholesome products, he is constantly bombarded with barbs from the food industry that his pork and eggs are "too high" in cholestrol, growth hormones cause cancer and whole milk makes you fat Frustrating - you bet!

There seems to be few solutions to the problem - at least that have worked. Advertising does help as does the farmer's attempts to sell directly to the consumer Many farmer's associations have attempted to ease the problem by rearranging marketing but of: find themselves stymied behind mountains of red tape

While a national farmer's strike may never come about - we should all be concerned about the future of agriculture One thing seems immently inevitable and that is that farmers certainly can't go on providing the world with food and not receive a fair profit in return

For in the words of a local Congressman, "He (the farmer) cannot be expected to grow increasing supplies of food only to take a loss on his labors"

Jane's home was stucco and very open inside "with hardly any walls." It was decorated with much Greek and oriental furnishings.

One interesting aspect of another culture is the food and Jane said, "The food there was very different." Breakfast in her host family was a simple meal, consisting of either yoghurt or black bread (which was white) and butter.

The largest meal was at noon. Jane said, "We hardly ever ate meat. There were casseroles with noodles, pizza pie crusts with fruit or pastry with little pieces of meat, and there was always a salad." The ingredients for the meal were always fresh because Jane said her host mother went marketing every morning.

The evening meal was again a simple one with things like cheese fondue or luncheon meat and cheese, always prettily rolled up. And of course, there was bread.

Eating itself was different. Jane said, "They use both hands. They don't keep one hand in their lap. Once I got used to it it was easier and I really enjoyed it."

Food generally was quite expensive, Jane said. An ice cream sundae cost $2.00 and their delicious chocolate was also expensive. Jane claimed to have been really fond of both, and admits to gaining five pounds on her visit.

Clothing and housing also seemed expensive, Jane said. "It was rare to see anyone building a house." The young people wore a lot of blue jeans but a pair could cost as much as $29.00. Because clothing was so high Jane said, "They had fewer clothes but of very high quality."

Jane found the youth "more mature than here. There was no problem making friends. They came and really made me feel at home. They went out of their way to be friendly."

As for dating, it is not done as early as here. They don't drive until age 18. "They don't seem to have experimental dates. When they do start dating it is likely to be with the same person for a long time." Jane said they are also older when they get married, but financially it is cheaper not to get married at all, and finding housing is difficult. Jane said, "there is not the pressure of finding boy friends."

Jane felt the exchange trip had changed her somewhat. "It made me appreciate the United States more. We take so much for granted. We live so well here. But I did like the way they live. There is less pressure about what to wear and less social pressure. I learned to accept people for what they are."

Jane highly recommends the YFU program and says she has one sister who already wants to go abroad. "It is so much better than just traveling. You learn the culture and the people. And that's why I really enjoyed it."

Jane is a 1975 graduate of Penn Manor High School where she played the violin in the orchestra and sang with the concert choir. She was also a member of the student council, the track team and manager of the wrestling team. She is a member of Faith Calvery Church.

Currently a freshman at Millersville State College, Jane professes to having mixed feelings when it was time to come home from her visit. She said, "I wanted to come home and see my family, but I was so sorry to leave. It was just beautiful."

Jane is one of a growing number of youth who are fortunate enough to experience life in another country. The YFU literature explains that one purpose of the program is to start "conversations." The many conversations which have been started must be opening up whole new horizons for our neighbors in the world community.

Beef featured in all-American lunch

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS - I know a kid so dumb he flunked lunch period!

A funny line? Not really. For, according to Ruth Hogan, Specialist in School Food Service, National Live Stock and Meat Board, many school children are in effect "flunking" lunch period by failing to take advantage of their school program.

"No one knows how many brown bags full of food end up in school trash cans, or how many candy bars substitute for a good lunch," says Hogan "Unfortunately, the children, and more importantly, their parents are unaware of the importance of a good-tasting, nutritional lunch."

To point out the importance of the school lunch program, the American School Food Service Association has proclaimed October 12-18 as National School Lunch Week. Looking for the ideal meal to headline during this week, the association turned to the American favorite, a cheeseburger on a buttered bun.

On Wednesday, Oct. 15, the "All American Lunch" will be served in 90,000 schools across the nation. More than 25 million beefburgers will be served - more than 3.1 million pounds of ground beef. The meal will also include Crispy Potatoes (French Fries), Fiesta Slaw (cabbage and carrots), milk and chilled peaches. "The menu was selected because of its popularity with youngsters and because of its nutritional quality," said Hogan. "The meal will provide 1-3 of the daily RDA nutritional requirements for children 7 to 10 years of age."

Featuring beef in the "All American Lunch" reflects the overall importance of beef to the school lunch program as well as the entire institutional segment of the beef industry. Last year the government purchased for the school lunch program more than 179 million pounds of beef This year the total is expected to reach 250 million pounds

LADIES, HAVE YOU HEARD?

By Doris Thomas, Extension Home Economist

Preparing Sunflower Seeds At Home

Raw mature seeds may easily be prepared at home by covering unshelled seeds with salted water (2 qts. of water to 1/4 to 1/2 cups salt). Bring to a boil and simmer 2 hours. Drain and dry on absorbant paper. (Or you may want to soak in salt solution overnight.)

Put sunflower seeds in a shallow pan in a 300 degree oven for 30 to 40 minutes or until golden brown . . . stir occasionally . . take out of oven and add 1 teaspoon of melted butter or margarine to one cup of seeds. Stir to coat. Put on an abosrbent towel. Salt to taste. Deep fat fry hulled seeds at 360 degrees. For every cup of seeds allow 1/4 cup cooking oil. Cook until golden brown. Skim off and drain seeds on absorbent paper. After salting, store tightly covered.

Actually, sunflower seeds may be used in any recipe that calls for nuts including toppings for cake, frostings or ice cream topping or even fondue dips.

The ounce (about 150 calories) of hulled sunflower seeds, often used as a nutrition snack food is packed with vitamins — even vitamin K, in trace amounts. The sunflower seeds are high in calcium, contains 11 other minerals — 50 percent fat, mostly polyunsaturated fatty acid, linoleic.

Outside of the popular "eating out of hand" style — you may also use sunflower kernels in your batter for coating oven-fried chicken (for a crunchy, nutty taste). Other ways include adding them to hamburger recipes or casserole dishes

Tops On Antiquing Furniture

Antiquing is a popular furniture finish, probably because so many different effects can be achieved with the antiquing process.

For a creative touch, you can try your hand at sponging, flecking, or distressing. It's helpful to study some professional antiquing to see results you should be striving for in quality end results.

The sponging technique is what the name implies — a sponge pattern of color over the base coat. To do this, simply tear off a piece of natural sponge to get a rough surface. Then apply the glaze of your choice by constant turning of the sponge. The sponging method adds depth of color interest to the furniture surface.

Flecking allows you to add flects of color to the finish Older pieces, as well as new furniture, are flecked with color, usually black, to provide an aged effect and depth of color. To do the flecking process, first antique the furniture the desired color and allow to dry. Color is literally flecked onto the surface in a fly-speck treatment with a semi-dry brush from which excess paint has been removed. The secret is not to apply the flecks uniformly. Always test against dry board to be sure flecks are minute and not large drops of paint.

These special designs will demand practice. But the fun is in the trying. And with each attempt you will develop beautiful artistic effects.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

I've been thinking this week as I gather the harvest from my garden that in a way it is similar to having children grown up and be independent, productive citizens.

In a garden you have weeks and months of hard and sometimes unpleasant work. The correct seed must be planted at the right time and cultivated carefully and protected from the elements. Then comes the day when the crops mature and you can reap your harvest.

With children, one somehow lives through years of messy eating habits, many trips out of bed during the night, squabbles and arguments, problems at school and many worries.

Then comes the day when the child is grown up and takes his place in the medical world, the business world and in agriculture or whatever pursuit he has chosen and the parent has an opportunity to sit back and be proud of his part in the accomplishments of a young adult. However, it seems we don't attain anything without some work.

The other Sunday we traveled to Clinton County for a Field Day. It was my first visit to this area and newly opened highways made the trip easy. But, for pure enjoyment I like the less traveled routes as they wind through woods and past small country homes and old mills.

I was keen-eyed enough to spy seven deer grazing in two different groups at the edge of a field also.

Before we left the county, I was introduced to a friendly lady who said, "I always read your article first when Lancaster Farming comes to our house." Now of course those are sweet words every time I hear them.

What really amazes me is the wide area which this, no longer small paper covers, not only in many counties in Pa. but many other states as well.

Tourist guide published

For many small farmers in recent years the spare rooms in the farmhouse have provided more bountiful harvests than the old south forty, and all signs indicate that trend will continue.

Hundreds of farm and ranch families have turned their spare rooms, cabins and even extra farmhouses into income-producing vacation havens for city dwellers, according to Pat Dickerman, editor and publisher of the Farm, Ranch & Countryside Guide which for 27 years has been bringing urban vacationers and rural hosts together. Miss Dickerman anticipates the Bicentennial tourist crop to the American countryside will be a bumper one exceeding all previous years.

Harvesting vactioners - that is, providing lodging and either cooking facilities or else family-style meals - is a business that allows rural familes to put to good use their talents for hospitality and homemaking, and to use more completely the total resources of the farm or ranch for expanding income.

It also provides an opportunity to show and tell the story of American agriculture to urban visitors - its problems and its enormous successes.

The Bicentennial edition of the Farm, Ranch & Countryside Guide, now being prepared for press, will list more than 500 recommended ranches, farms and rural lodges in each region of the country. Now is the time for rural hosts interested in being listed in it and cashing in one next year's crop of tourists to write to Farm & Ranch Vacations, Inc., 36 East 57th Street, New York, NY 10022 for the free brochure, How to Harvest Vacationers.

USDA sees milk production recovering

WASHINGTON — Milk production, which turned down from year - earlier levels during the spring, likely will show small increases from a year ago by late 1975. For the entire year, production is expected to total close to the 115.4 billion pounds of 1974. Farm milk prices are likely to rise seasonally during the remainder of the year and remain well above a year ago.

Milk production is August was almost 1 percent below 1974, chiefly the result of lower output per cow stemming from reduced concentrate feeding. Milk cow numbers continued down from year - earlier levels by only about half a percent, the slowest rate of decline in about two decades.

Slaughter cow prices have eased downward from the spring highs and likely will remain at low levels this fa and winter. The larg number of dair replacements on farms a midyear and the lack o significant improvement i economic alternatives fo dairymen also will help t limit declines in milk cow numbers through the rest of 1975.

Hot, dry weather durin July and August in th western Corn Belt an strengthening world deman for grain indicate highe feed costs in late 1975 and early 1976 than earlier ex pected. However, rising mill prices likely will lead t much more attractive feeding relationships than a year ago and somewha heavier feeding of grain. Milk production per cow may recover and start approaching more normal gains by late 1975.

Farm milk prices rose sharply in late summer, reaching $8.47 per 100 pounds in August, up 53 cents from the June low and 73 cents above a year ago Manufacturing milk prices also rose sharply and were more than $1 above year-earlier levels in August.

Cash receipts from dairying were up about 5 percent from a year ago this summer after being down sharply earlier this year Groff dairy income likely will remain above year-earlier levels during the rest of the year and probably will exceed $9½ billion for all of 1975. The 2 percent gain from 1974 reflects slightly higher milk prices as milk marketings may be close to a year ago. Although feed costs were down about a tenth from August 1974, other costs have continued to rise.

Sparked by declining production, low seasonal stocks, and strong sales, wholesale butter prices have risen about 16 cents per pound since early June. American cheese prices rose about 15 cents from early May. Even nonfat dry milk prices, which had been at support purchase prices since mid-1974, moved upward 5 cents in late August and early September.

Retail dairy prices in July were down about 1½ percent from their peak in February wholesale price rises are starting to be reflected in retail stores.

throughout the county — although his words have not always been heeded — in matters dealing with county parklands, farmlands, and on a more local level, expansion of Lititz' sewer treatment plant and development of what is believed to be Lititz' watershed area.

Heilman and his wife have already started building plans for a joint studio in Buena Vista, which is about 80 miles west of Colorado Springs, and for a new mountain home about five miles west of the town. "Our back yard will be a 14,000 foot mountain," he said.

In Colorado, he will be within a day's drive of the major farmlands of the nation, where he has been doing most of his photography work for a number of years now. He will be "on location" most of the time, but instead of spending days and weeks getting there, driving over congested highways he has come to hate, it will be more like a day's drive through the mountains and prairies that he loves.

"Just one small example," he smiled — on a recent drive he made from Buena Vista to Colorado Springs, "which is like going from Lancaster to Philadelphia," he passed only 10 cars in 50 minutes.

What Heilman calls the creeping metropolism of Lancaster County is the fact that, bit by bit, the county's farmland is being eaten up by industrial and residential development. It is the demise of the farmland, he said.

He sees two problems that he doesn't think Lancaster County will be able to solve.

"I don't feel we will be able to save farmland because farmers understandably want to be able to sell their land where they can get the most money for it. I'm not degrading them — it's their right," he added.

"Developers are more ready to put money into farmland than anyone else. And in spite of some actions, like the Clean and Green Law, we won't be able to solve this," he said.

The only feasible solution, he went on, will be for communities to buy up farmland themselves, or buy up the development rights to these. This is being done now in New Jersey, but it's incredibly expensive, he said. "How many towns are ready to put up this kind of money?"

The other area where the county is simply going to fail is being able to control the interest of industry coming in, "because I don't think we want to control it," he said.

Some think the more industry that comes in, the better, he continued. We're attracting more people now because of the low unemployment rate in Lancaster County. And we're perfectly situated from a marketing viewpoint.

"But I think the public is scared to shut off industrial growth," he went on. "We're making loans to businesses to come here and spending money to attract industry, when I think we should be making it tougher."

But, he said, unless you're involved in planning it's easy to straddle the fence and say we need new industry, but let's keep the farmland. Obviously, you can't do both.

If the people want this — and many do, for the tax revenue it brings in — then there isn't much that can be done to prevent it, he said. Township supervisors are supposed to reflect the desires of the people, and if people want more development, then the supervisors actually are doing their job in this area, he said. But again he warned that controls are necessary.

"The demise of farmland is eating into our ability to produce food," he said. "We could live without our cities, but not without our farmlands," he said.

In a more philosophical vein, he added, "I feel that people who are forced to live without greenery around them are living a very

'Country-style' meats to be standardized

WASHINGTON — The U. S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) recently called for public comment on a proposal to establish a new standard of identity for pork products labeled as "country ham," "country-style pork shoulder" and similar names.

The proposed standard would establish minimum preparation requirements for these products to help maintain those characteristics traditionally associated with country-cured products officials of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) said.

Under the proposal, federal meat inspection regulations would specifically define products such as "country ham", "country-style ham", "country pork shoulder" or "country-style pork shoulder" as being uncooked, dry-cured, smoked or unsmoked products made from a solid piece of meat coming from the ham or shoulder, respectively, of a hog.

Further, these products could not be injected with, nor put up in liquid solutions.

Likewise, such products would have to be prepared in accordance with other specific requirements, including the following:

- The entire exterior of the ham or pork shoulder would have to be coated with an amount of salt or a mixture of salt and other curing agents sufficient to insure complete penetration of the cure mixture. Optional ingredients which could also be used include sucrose, dextrose, corn syrup solids, honey, pepper, spices and other approved flavorings.
- Hams would require at least 45 days for cure penetration and equalization with an additional minimum of 25 days required for the drying period. Likewise, pork shoulders would require at least 25 days for cure penetration and equalization with an additional minimum of 25 days required for the drying period. For both hams and pork shoulders, the internal temperature when produced under controlled atmospheric condition, could not exceed 95 degree Fahrenheit during the drying period.
- The finished product would have to shrink at least 18 percent from its fresh weight
- Ham[illegible]pork shoulders would have to be treated to destroy any live trichinae
- Products labeled as "country" or "country-style" would have to be capable of being distributed without refrigeration, and labeled as such.

The proposed standard would not differentiate between products labeled as "country" or "country-style". Rather, these terms would be considered as generic in nature when used in labeling hams and pork shoulders — as a reference to their curing characteristics rather than the geographic location where they are produced.

Officials emphasized that adoption of the new standard would not porhibit the production of products under natural climatic conditions and which are held for aging for much longer periods — provided the safety and wholesomeness of the finished product is assured.

Years ago, it was common practice for people to prepare meat during winter months so that it would not spoil when warmer weather arrived. This involved applying salt to the meat, and removing the natural moisture through "aging". The warmer temperatures of spring and summer continued the drying process and completed the preservation — which killed any trichinae, preserved the product, and contributed to the flavor, texture and other characteristics associated with products prepared in this manner.

While refrigeration and other technological advances since then have eliminated the need for this type of preservation, many people retain a preference for such products. Therefore, USDA's proposal is designed to establish minimum requirements that will approximate those traditionally associated with country-cured products.

On two previous occasions — July 17, 1971 and July 13, 1972 — USDA has issued similar proposals to establish a standard of identity for country-cured pork products.

While comments received on those earlier proposals generally favored the establishment of such a standard, there was considerable difference of opinion on the amount of time that would be required for salting, curing and aging, as well as the maximum temperature to which such products should be subjected during drying or aging. Relevant information obtained since then has been considered and incorporated into the current proposal, APHIS officials said

The complete text of the proposed standard was published in the Sept. 5, 1975 Federal Register. Copies of the proposal are available from APHIS, Room 1164 - South Bldg., USDA, Washington, DC 20250.

Anyone wishing to submit written comments concerning the proposed amendment are urged to do so by filing them in duplicate with the Hearing Clerk, Room 112-A, USDA, Washington, DC 20250.

Confidential material or requests for oral presentations should be addressed to the Products Standards Staff, Technical Services, Meat and Poultry Inspection Program, APHIS, USDA, Washington, DC 20250.

Deadline for all comments — oral and written — is Nov. 4, 1975.

Oral and written comments will be made available for public inspection during regular hours of business in the Office of the Hearing Clerk.

Milk output down

HARRISBURG — Milk production in Pennsylvania during August was 570 million pounds, down one percent from a year ago, according to the Crop Reporting Service. The number of milk cows in the Commonwealth during August was 685,000, unchanged from last month and a year ago.

Milk production per cow averaged 845 pounds in August, down one percent from a year earlier but two percent above August 1973.

United States milk production during August was estimated at 9,609 million pounds, 0.8 percent below a year ago. U.S. milk production per cow averaged 863 pounds, down two pounds from a year ago, but 26 pounds above August 1973. Milk cows on farms during August totaled 11,137,000 head, down 0.6 percent from a year ago. The estimated number of milk cows was 5,000 below a month ago.

Holsteins Classified

Norman Kline, Klinedell of Schaefferstown reports that his Registered Holsteins were calssified for body conformation on Sept. 16. The scoring was done by an official classifier of Holstein-Friesian Association of America, Brattleboro, Vermont.

Dairymen enrolled in this herd improvement program receive a numerical score for each animal evaluated. The True-Type Holstein represents theoretical perfection and has a value of 100 points on the classification score card. Each animal is scored, receiving a rating of Excellent (90 points or more), Very Good (85 through 89), Good Plus (80 through 84), Good (75 through 79), Fair (65 through 74) or Poor (64 points or below).

Including animals previously scored, the Klinedell herd has 3 Excellents, 17 Very Goods and 34 Good Pluses.

To provide a more complete image of each animal, the classifier also uses comparative terms to describe twelve major parts of the animal's physical characteristics. This "Word picture" serves as a guide for planning a breeding program to improve the herd.

The information from the classification of the herd will be summarized by the Holstein Association on its high speed computer. Returned to the breeder, these reports provide useful information for selection in the herd. The data is also published and available as reference for the herd improvement programs of Hostein dairymen everywhere.

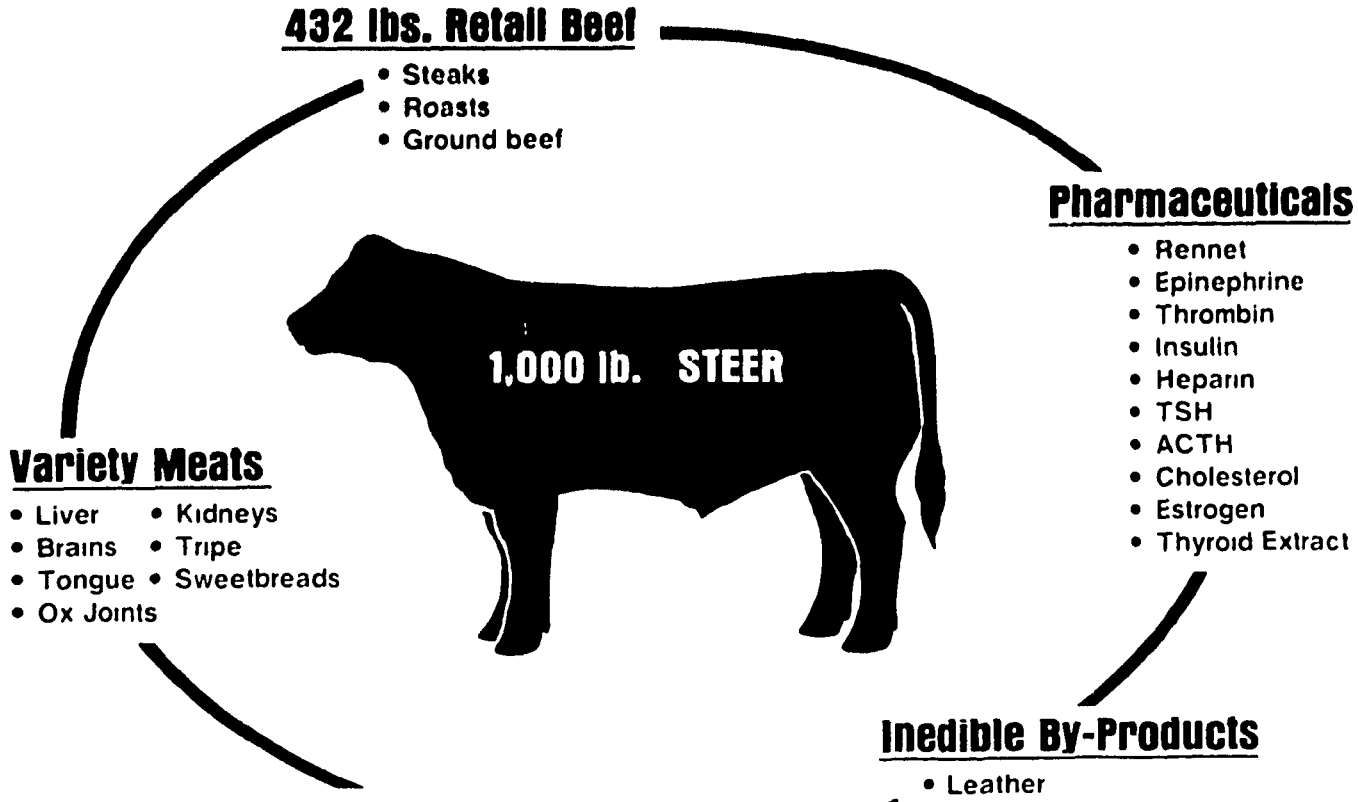
Good things from cattle

(Prepared by the Beef Industry Council of the Meat Board)



Although it s hard to attach a dollar value to the contributions of cattle by-products, the very real monetary value of these by-products helps keep the price of beef well below what it might otherwise be The above illustrates some of the good things which come from cattle New uses for by-products are discovered almost daily, thereby enriching the quality of American life far beyond the table

Simpler implement hook-ups desired

CHICAGO - A new FIEI engineering task force - the Drawbar-Hitch Committee - has been formed to study and make recommendations on tractor drawbar extensions (taking into account the various PTO, three-point hitch, and drawbar requirements).

As their first project, participants are studying the possibility of standardizing tractor drawbar dimensions including the hitch pin hole. Purpose of this is to help relieve problems faced by implement manufacturers in supplying drawbar extensions compatible with the many sizes and makes of tractors.

The committee also plans future study on automatic coupling of drawbar coupled machines, automatic coupling for the three-point hitch, elimination of the hitch pin in the drawbar, and hydraulic and electrical coupling.

Committee members include chairman Kurt Hohn (J I Case), Fred Pierson (International Harvester), Wendell Van Syco (John Deere), John Plate (Allis-Chalmers), and Wilmer Witt (Koehring Farm Equipment).

The group was chartered at an October 1974 FIEI Engineering Policy Committee meeting.

Layer production down

HARRISBURG - Pennsylvania layers produced 266 million eggs during August, according to the Crop Reporting Service. This represents a two percent decline from last month and an eight percent decrease from a year ago.

The August average of 13.3 million layers was up one percent from the previous month, but down eight percent from a year earlier.

Egg production per 100 layers during August totaled 2,000 eggs, down three percent from the previous month and one percent below a year earlier.

The nation's laying flocks produced 5,388 million eggs during August, one percent less than a year earlier. Layers on hand during August averaged 271 million, down three percent from a year earlier. The average rate of egg production furing the month was up two percent from a year earlier.

MANAGING YOUR FAMILY'S FINANCES

By Dr. Carl F. Hawver

Q. I haven't been married very long and I get confused in the market place. I want to make our money go as far as it can, but I don't know how. How does one learn to be a smart shopper?

A Being a smart shopper is like being a smart anything else. It requires doing your "homework"—being sure you have researched both your needs and what the market offers BEFORE you start buying First, you need to make a careful list of what you need before you go to the supermarket. Study the ads to look for specials while you are making up your list. Running from store to store can use up more dollars in gasoline than it saves in food prices, but you can change your meal plans to match one store's specials When you get to the store, buy only what is on your list—no impulse buying

When you are shopping for big ticket items like appliances, furniture, TV's or even cars, study your consumer reports on different products before you leave the house to find which makes are the best buys for your needs Decide what you need and what you can afford to pay. If you're buying on credit, check your budget to see how much you have left each month after all bills are paid. Don't obligate yourself for more than half of that amount in new monthly credit payments. Set guidelines for how much you will spend before you leave the house, and don't change. If you can't find what you want at your price, come home and talk it over.

Dr Carl F. Hawver, Executive Vice President of the National Consumer Finance Association, is a widely recognized counseling expert in family money and credit management

SOW CASTLE... the new economical, plug-up-and-go total farrowing environment QUALIFIES FOR TAX INVESTMENT CREDIT

Models come 12 or 24 feet wide (24-foot model shown here), in lengths of 32 or 50 feet. All 24-foot wide buildings have an entry door in each end. See chart on back of this sheet for more specifications.

Built-in ventilation system keeps building dry and provides fresh air for animal health. Unique air flow system pulls air in at roof ridge line, circulates it over the top of the animals, through the pit, and out. Note that design of roof system eliminates the need for any massive bulkheads that could restrict air flow.

Each farrowing stall has an adjustable sow feeder and automatic water cup. Nipple waterer is optional in place of water cup. Stall sides are adjustable to size of sow. Nursery feeders are provided for pigs.

Farrowing stalls and nursery areas are equipped with aluminum T-slats in the floor, front and rear. Individual slats are 1" across the top and 1" high, with 3/8" spacing between slats.

Grange convention slated

HARRISBURG - New and pending legislation affecting agriculture and the rural areas of the state will be a major concern to delegates at the 103rd annual convention of the Pennsylvania State Grange to be held at Lancaster October 27, 28, 29 and 30.

Almost 2,700 bills, many of them directly or indirectly affecting agriculture, have been introduced in the General Assembly since January, J. Luther Snyder, state Grange master, pointed out.

"Too often," he said, "new legislation is aimed at a specific area or a specific problem without regard to eventual or overall results. Consequently, we frequently find that some legislation, in trying to correct a problem, actually creates another problem."

More than 100 resolutions, originating at the subordinate Grange or local level will be considered by delegates at the state session. These resolutions, Snyder pointed out, will establish Grange policy for the coming year, and many will deal with legislative matters.

In preparation for their reports and recommendations to the delegates at the state convention, Grange legislative, agriculture and dairy committees have met to review resolutions already submitted and to examine existing and pending legislation related to them.

This year's Grange convention will be hosted by the Lancaster, Chester-Delaware and Montgomery County Pomona Granges. Business sessions will be held in the historic Fulton Opera House in Lancaster during the day, and at the McCaskey High School auditorium in the evening.

Richard Maule, of Quarryville R2, is chairman of the convention committee.

Hauling charge for milk may be eliminated for NY farmers

The 10 cents per hundred pounds of milk hauling charge currently being levied against thousands of dairy farmers in many areas of the New York-New Jersey milk market may be eliminated, it was learned recently.

Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative has announced that it will take immediate steps to remove the extra fee inaugaurated during this year's period of surplus milk production. Because of a change in marketing conditions, Eastern believes the hauling charge is no longer necessary.

John C. York, General Manger of the 8000 dairy farmer-member co-operative, issued the statement from Eastern's Syracuse, N.Y. headquarters following a meeting of Eastern's Board of Directors on September 17.

President Arden Tewksbury of Meshoppen, Pa. confirmed that Eastern's Board had passed a resolution designed to alleviate the problem and immediately schedule a series of meetings throughout the effected areas explaining the cooperative's program.

Supplies of milk are dwindling to the detriment of consumers, York noted. He observed the receipts of milk had dropped nearly 4 percent in August 1975 compared to a year ago and by a whopping 4.6 percent from July to August this year in the New York-New Jersey market.

Football players and school teachers, for example, have been successful in realizing monetary gains by witholding their services. However, dairy farmers, engaged in the critical business of producing food for this nation, have been unrewarded in their attempt to work and meet their costs of producing milk, York charged.

Agriculture, including milk producers, will disappear from the American scene and the general public will be the loser without proper incentives for farmers to continue in food production, stressed the Co-operative leader.

Eastern contends that milk must be priced at the farm in all Federal Milk Marketing Orders of the Northeast, the same as it is priced in the New York-New Jersey market, minus the hauling charge in question, to preserve the integrity of the Federal Order Program and protect the dairymen from pricing chaos, York commented.

"If dairy farmers are denied a fair return for their efforts and investment, they could be forced to withold milk from market to gain that position to which they are entitled," predicted York.

THE GOOD WORD from the Bible

Consider for a moment what a hybrid like G-4444 means to hybrids comin down the road

For we took the strongest characteristics of this world record holder and bred them into our new, improved hybrids

Hybrids like G-4321 that beat out ol reliable '4444 in some areas of the country And G-4949A that produced another record yield of 303 6 bu/acre in the FFA Yield Challenge Program last year

Now, no one knows better than you that there s a lot of stress a crop has to overcome Disease, insects, weather Luck

Point is, if a hybrid can survive, and come through with a world record yield of 306 6 bu/acre like G-4444, it must have something going for it

And since we re breeding that something into our family, sooner or later it s gonna end up helping your family

So maybe you didn t think the world record yield held by G-4444 meant much But just remember, one good hybrid leads to another And another And another

Weber suspended

Carl A. Weber, doing business as Weber's Produce in Lancaster, Pa., has had his Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act (PACA) license suspended August 29 by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

According to the USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, Weber failed to satisfy a reparation award of a Pennsylvania wholesaler for numerous lots of fruits and vegetables shipped during June and July of 1974. The charges were not answered by Weber and USDA ordered payment of the full amount.

As a result of the suspension, Weber, is not eligible to operate in the produce business under the PACA until he satisfies the award and gains USDA approval. The firm's officers, directors, and stockholders may not be employed or affiliated with any license firm without USDA approval.

Any PACA licensee wanting to employ someone who has previously failed to pay a reparation award or has been subject to USDA disciplinary action must post a surety bond and obtain USDA approval.

The PACA establishes a code of fair business dealings for the produce industry It requires that interstate traders in fresh and frozen fruits and vegetables be licensed and authorizes USDA to suspend or revoke a trader's license for violating the Act.

Nutrena Controlled Release CLS—
so different, it's patented

Your cattle will like Nutrena Controlled Release CLS and you'll like the benefits behind this new development in liquid supplements. The patented process controls the release of protein-building ammonia nitrogen in the rumen compared with a conventional urea-based liquid supplement. This improves the feeding efficiency of the urea. And, the slow-down means an extra margin of safety from urea toxicity—that's important when self-feeding liquid supplement.

Congressman speaks on Soviet grain deal

WASHINGTON REPORT
Congressman
Edwin D. Eshleman
16th District
Pennsylvania

The rising price of food has caused some Americans to question our oversea's sale of farm products - particularly our grain sales to Russia. This is understandable in light of the bad experience we have had with previous grain deals with the Soviet Union.

The Ford Administration is in the process of changing the style of the ballgame, however. We are now looking toward telling the Russians that we'll sell you foodstuffs in return for your fuel supplies.

This is a responsible approach to world trade as it affects our own national interests. Food is a commodity we have in surplus to sell. It should be used to buy those things that we need from the rest of the world.

Let's not kid ourselves. We cannot decide to withdraw within our own borders and ignore what the rest of the world has been selling us. We are a nation comprising 6 percent of the global population and we consume 30 percent of the world's raw materials. Obviously, we must continue to look beyond our own borders to get the things we need just to maintain our present standard of living.

That means we have to have something to offer the world in return. That something used to be dollars, but the dollar has dropped in value and prestige in the world's market. What we have today that the world wants badly is food.

Therefore, a responsible policy, both in terms of domestic needs and foreign trade, should encourage farmers to grow and produce as much food as possible. We should be planting on every available acre and trying to increase the yield per acre. The more we produce the more we have to trade for things like petroleum, chromium, bauxite, etc.

This kind of policy is precisely the reverse of the tragic programs sold to us by the liberals several years ago. Those programs encouraged farmers not to grow by paying them for fields left unplanted. Some would have us believe that a return to similar policies would be in our best interests. To my way of thinking, the only interests that would be served by "no-grow" programs would be those who wish to see the American people denied access to world markets.

Of course, all of this depends on offering the farmer a fair return on his investment. He cannot be expected to grow increasing supplies of food only to take a loss on his labors. Rather, he must be assured that he will be able to sell what he grows at a price that compensates him for his costs and his labor.

With food products as our main commodity for world trade, we can remain competitive with the nations who are attempting to gain power with products like oil. To ignore our ability and capacity to produce food will bring us long-range tragedy.

Holsteins Classified

Dale Pride Farm of Annville reports that his Registered Holsteins were classified for body conformation on Sept. 6. The scoring was done by an official classifier of Holstein-Friesian Association of America, Brattleboro, Vermont.

Dairymen enrolled in this herd improvement program received a numerical score for each animal evaluated. The True-Type Holstein represents theoretical perfection and has a value of 100 points on the classification score card. Each animal is scored, receiving a rating of Excellent (90 points or more), Very Good (85 through 89), Good Plus (80 through 84), Good (75 through 79), Fair (65 through 74) or Poor (64 points or below.

Including animals previously scored, the Dale Hostetter herd has 4 Excellents, 30 Very Goods and 25 Good Pluses.

To provide a more complete image of each animal, the classifier also used comparative terms to describe twelve major parts of the animal's physical characteristics. This "word picture" serves as a guide for planning a breeding program to improve the herd.

Irwin wins achievement award

LANCASTER - Jay W. Irwin, associate Lancaster County extension agent, had been named winner of the 1975 State Achievement Award presented by the National Association of County Agricultural Agents.

The award is presented annually to a member of Penn State University's Cooperative Extension Service staff with less than 10 years of service and who has demonstrated outstanding ability to conduct innovative educational programs.

Irwin will receive a certificate October 2 at the annual meeting of the national county agents association in Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Announcement of the award selection was made by John H. Holbert, Bedford County Extension Director and chairman of the Pennsylvania County agents association recognition and awards committee.

The extension agent was cited for his work with Lancaster County poultry producers and processors. One of his major efforts was to reduce egg shell damage caused in poultry houses and processing plants.

Irwin and extension specialists made farm visits to study handling procedures in laying houses. In addition, egg handling was observed in the area's processing plants.

The agent then set up a series of meetings for both producers and processors to review facts and recommend corrections. This resulted not only in increased egg checks but created a better understanding of problems encountered by producers and processing plant personnel. He currently makes periodic farm visits to assist producers in over-all management problems.

The Lancaster County Poultry Association recently recognized Irwin with an award for his dedicated and helpful efforts to assist the poultry industry.

A native of Blair County, Irwin earned a bachelor of science degree from Penn State in 1949.

A member of the Lancaster County Extension staff since 1967, he previously was employed by the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau and Agway, Inc.

The Lancaster agent was recipient of a Career Guidance Award presented by the National Association of County Agricultural Agents and the Master Educator Award from the Pennsylvania Association of Farmer Cooperatives for his work with state and county youth programs.

Dr. King will have as part of his talk, some special comments concerning the 4-H volunteer leaders and their role in working with the young people of Schuylkill County. A special part of the evening's program will be the recognition of the 4-H leader.

Another part of the

program will be a slide set prepared by the Extension Staff, which reviews some of the many aspects of the Extension Education program. The general public is invited. Tickets can be obtained by contacting the Schuylkill County Extension Service, P. O. Box 404, Schuylkill Haven, Pennsylvania 17972.

Penn Manor selects new ag teacher

Penn Manor High School began the season with a new teacher in the agriculture department. Bernard Day, joined the staff of Gus Birchler and Mike Burton at the area school, increasing the number of ag instructors to three.

Day graduated from Cornell University and majored in ag education with emphasis in animal science and general agriculture. While attending Cornell, Day was a member of the ag teacher's group.

A graduate of Phelp's Central High School in Phelp's, New York, Day was an active FFA member taking several projects. He was a member of the chapter procedure team for his FFA and also served on the Farm Forum team and the basketball team.

Day received several FFA awards during his high school years including the Empire Farmer Award, numerous county awards for outstanding FFA work and an award from the area bankers.

Day will be helping out with all aspects of the agriculture program at Penn Manor and will be aiding with the FFA work also. Since beef production has been of interest to the instructor, he will be working closely with those students involved in raising steers.

Although relatively new to the area Day commented on living in the county, "I really like the people in this area and am anxious to really get involved in the work."

An avid sports fan, Day enjoys basketball and admits that he likes to play the game as often as he can.

Day, his wife and daughter, reside at Lancaster R2.

Bernard Day, was recently selected to join the teaching staff at Penn Manor High School. A graduate of Cornell University, Day will be teaching agriculture.

Hold Apple Quality

Harvest apples at the right stage of maturity to lengthen their storage life and prevent scale, reminds C. Marshall Ritter, Extension pomologist at The Pennsylvania State University. Quality and appearance are also influenced by fruit color, conditions of trees and kinds of container used for storage.

Flaming foliage soon to appear

HARRISBURG - Within a few weeks, weather permitting, Pennsylvania's countryside will take on a brand new look created by a rainbow-like mantel of color ranging from bright yellow to purple and a rich deep green.

Appropriately described as Pennsylvania's Flaming Foliage, this is the richness of Autum when the American beech turns a golden bronze, while the elm and the sycamore, along with the black willow, river and sweet birches, and the tuliptree, are transformed into a wide variety of yellowish hues.

Tinted with red are the oaks, dogwood and red maples; the sassafras turns a brilliant orange to scarlet, and the lowly sumac is cloaked with red to lavender.

Deep purple indicates a distant stand of white ash. The white oaks, unlike other oak species, may turn purple or violet; while the persimmon turns gold, the white pine a blueish green, and the hemlock retains its deep rich green.

This panorama of color spreads gradually throughout the Commonwealth with the richness of colors dependent on factors such as sunlight, rainfall and humidity.

The first evidence of widespread tree coloration can usually be sighted in the northern tier countries between Oct. 1 and Oct. 14. This area is comprised of a section of Wayne County and all of Susquehanna, Bradford, Tioga, Potter and McKean Counties.

As the sun moves southward, so does the season of coloration in nature's cycle and foliage is most beautiful in the central zone, which extends from one end of the Commonwealth to the other, between Oct. 12 and Oct. 26.

In the triangular southern zone, marked by an imaginery line extending from the southern part of Monroe County to the southwestern corner of Somerset County and the Mason-Dixon line, the magnificent coloration generally occurs between Oct. 19 and Oct. 31.

Performance records computerized

HOUSTON, TEX. - New, totally computerized performance certificates of registration are now being issued by American-International Charolais Assn, providing performance data on the individual animal and his sire and dam, announces Dr. J. W. Gossett, executive vice president.

"This new certificate will be issued on animals with performance records in the association's Charolais Herd Improvement Program on request of the breeder, thereby eliminating costly and time-consuming manual compilation of data for the certificates," he said.

Individual performance data on the animal and his sire and dam that will be shown on the performance certificate includes birth weights and calving ease, weaning and yearling weight ratios, and the number of contemporaries with which the individual was raised.

Data from the Charolais Sire Evaluation Program also will be shown on the individual's sire and grandsire.

Dr. Gossett said the new system is a departure from conventional performance certificates in that weight ratios and number of contemporaries only are included rather than actual weights. This gives a better indication of the genetic potential of that animal under that management system as opposed to arbirtary conception of weight levels, he added.

"This type of information continues a long-standing program of emphasis upon the performance of Charolais, and now places that information on the individual's registration-recordation certificate," Dr. Gossett continued. "It provides an objective description of the animal by tying together the performance of the animal with that of his parents and grandsire and their progeny for a better estimate of the papered animal's breeding value. It is vital information for making breeding assignments and for use by prospective buyers."

Currently more than 1,000 herds are enrolled in the Charolais Herd Improvement program, representing approximately 100,000 animals. Owners of cattle enrolled in other performance organizations, such as state Beef Cattle improvement Associations, may have that performance data fed into the CHIP system on arrangement with the Charolais association's breed improvement section, and also receive the performance certificate.

The association will continue issuance of its joint certificate with PRI, a standard hand-developed certificate used for more than a decade by some breeders, only upon request of those members.

Most of Penna. Land

Eighty-six percent of the land in Pennsylvania has been soil surveyed according to Benny Martin, State Conservationist, U.S. Soil Conservation Service (SCS). Soil surveyed land is that which has been mapped and classified by an SCS soil scientist. The soil maps contain information on soil texture, depth, drainage, and slope. The information is used extensively by local units of government, planners, land developers, state agencies, and landowners.

More than 870,000 acres were soil surveyed during the past fiscal year according to the SCS report. Field survey work was completed in Lebanon and Wyoming Counties. Soil survey reports were published for Northampton and Bucks-Philadelphia Counties. Interim reports, those published while field work is underway, were published in eight counties.

Twenty-six counties have published soil survey reports. Thirty-three counties have special or interim reports.

According to Donald Holzer soil scientist, Lancaster Soil Conservation Service , Farm & Home Center, Rm. 4; 1383 Arcadia Rd., Lancaster, Pa. 17601:

Soil Survey Lancaster County

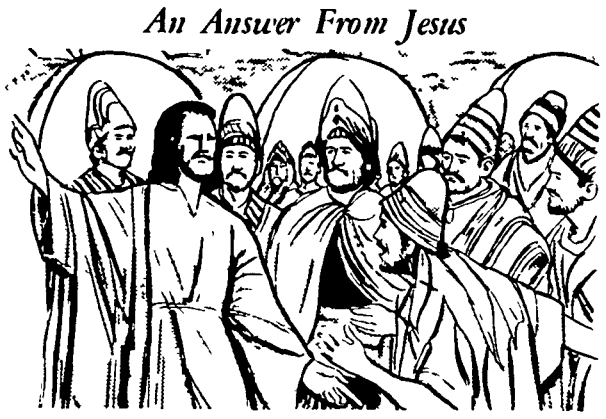
Attention Farmers. A preliminary soil investigation has begun. U.S.D.A. Soil Conservation Service soil scientists Don Holzer and Boyd Custer are carrying out this investigation and soil mapping.

Investigation began in the Schoeneck area and now moved to the Goshen - Little Britain area in the southern part of the county. Other areas in the county will be investigated before full field mapping begins.

Your cooperation is requested in this work. Soil testing at Penn State University is part of this effort.

A ceremony is scheduled to be held in March to offically open the soil mapping of Lancaster County.

An Answer From Jesus



The Pharisees also with the Sadducees came, and tempting desired him that he would shew them a sign from heaven

He answered and said unto them, When it is evening, ye say, It will be fair weather, for the sky is red

And in the morning, It will be foul weather to day, for the sky is red and lowring O ye hypocrites, ye can discern the face of the sky, but can ye not discern the signs of the times?

A wicked and adulterous generation seeketh after a sign, and there shall no sign be given unto it, but the sign of the prophet Jonas And he left them, and departed

Prospects for rail system is NEPPCO exposition topic

HERSHEY, PA — What's ahead for rail transportation in serving agriculture in the years ahead?

Poultry producers and allied industrymen attending the 44th anniversary exposition of the Northeastern Poultry Producers Council on Oct. 21-23 will get the message at the new Hershey Convention Center.

In the belief that "the proposed ConRail system offers the opportunity for improved service by a privately-owned and viable operator," former American Farm Bureau Federation President Charles B. Shuman will explore "What's Down the Track for Eastern Agriculture."

"Efficient and reliable transportation is essential for a prosperous and productive agriculture, and northeastern poultrymen have an important stake in the successful reorganization of the Penn-Central and other railroads of the region," Shuman says.

He will outline prospects and the odds for an effective reorganization as part of a NEPPCO speaking program which also features sessions on poultry health and the means of capitalizing production in the years ahead. Also on the program are an expert review of the current and future events with high-impact value on the industry and a perceptive look at what shifting world conditions mean to traditional marketing patterns here and abroad.

Center of attraction in the new Convention Center will be NEPPCO's annual commercial exposition of the latest in equipment, products and services, together with the traditional youth and ladies programs, the big market egg and carton shows and other social and educational events.

Information on early show registration is available at NEPPCO offices, 322 Oxford Valley Road, Fairless Hills, PA 19030, telephone 215-547-0190. Room reservations should be made directly with the Hershey Motor Lodge.

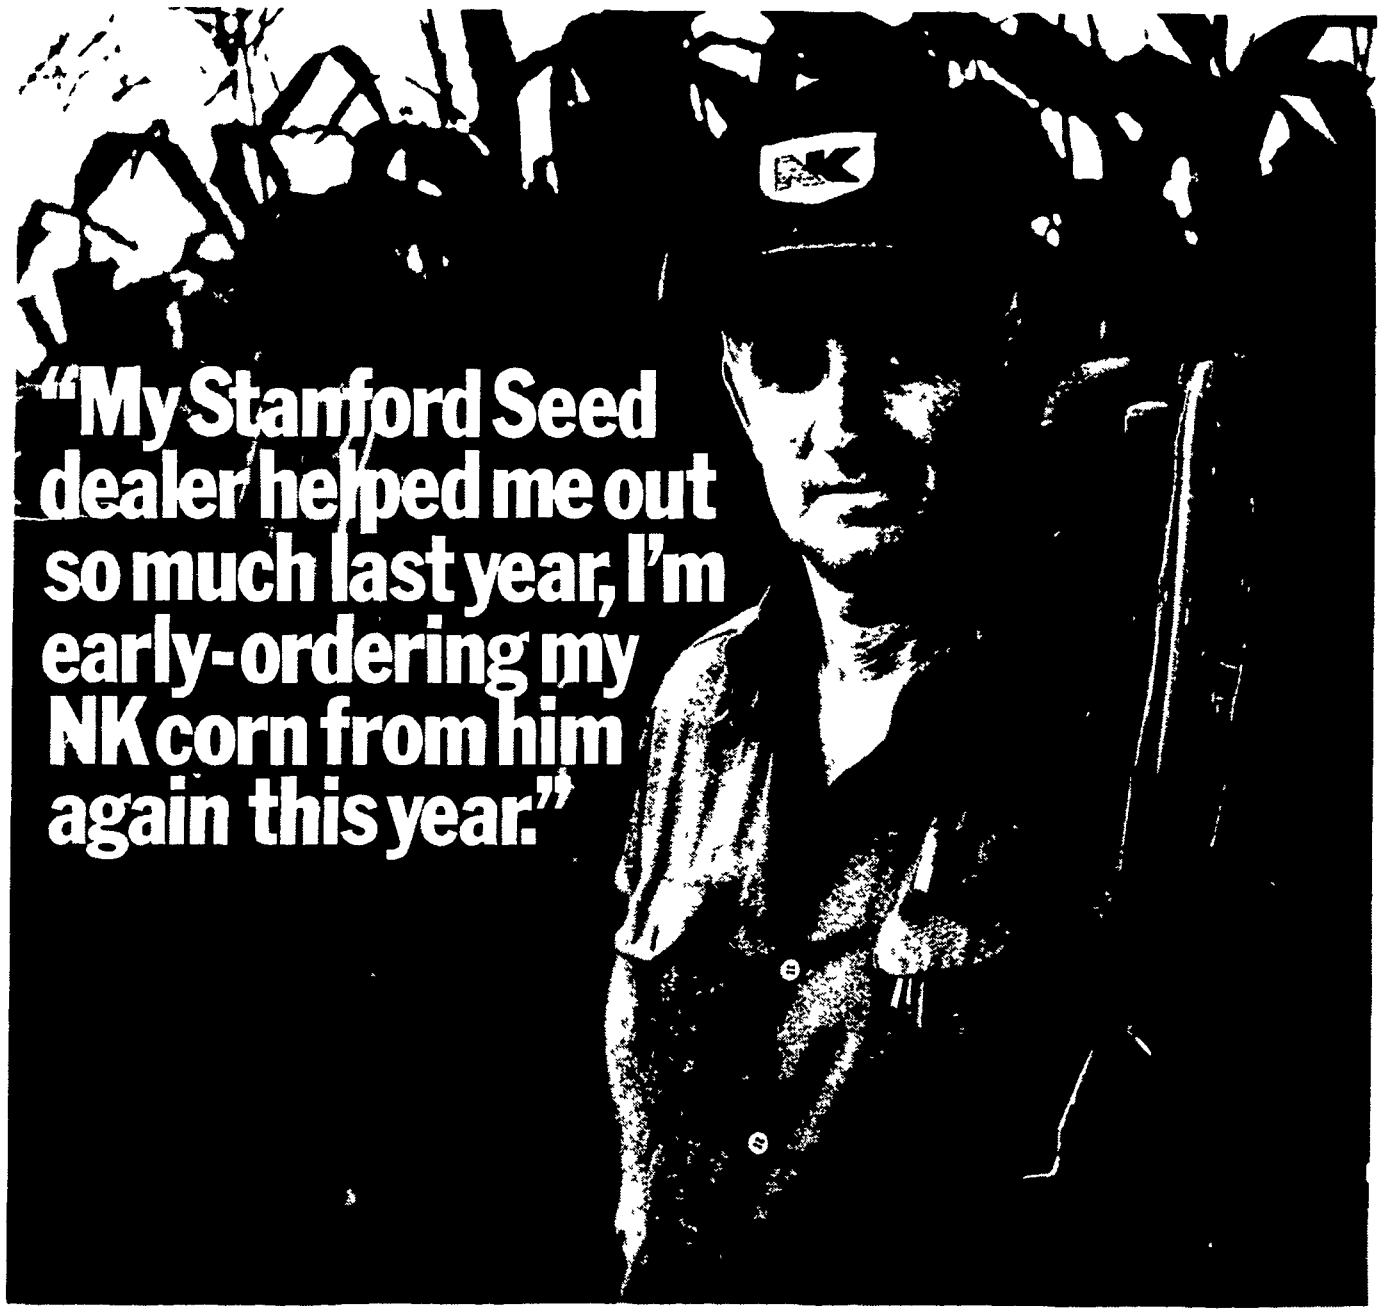
Take This Fire Safety Quiz

Every year 12,000 Americans are killed in fires and another 300,000 of them are injured. Yet, if questioned, few people take even the smallest measures to secure their families from this terrible threat. When a few simple precautions can mean the difference between life and death, are you willing to neglect them?

General Electric Company, manufacturer of the Home Sentry™ Smoke Alarm, suggests that you take the following test to determine how well protected your family is

- Do you conduct periodic home fire drills so that each member of the family knows at least two escape routes, and knows of a designated meeting place outside?
- Is your home equipped with smoke sensing alarms such as the new detectors that have recently come onto the market by companies such as General Electric? Are you aware that such devices sense the presence of even small amounts of smoke, at which time they sound a loud alarm?
- Do you sleep with bedroom doors closed? Did you know that in the event of fire, you will gain precious minutes to escape if you do?
- Do you exercise extreme care with smoking materials and matches, major causes of destructive fires? Do you make sure that you never leave these where children can reach them?
- Do you periodically check your home for such fire hazards as old newspapers, cartons, old furniture, oily rags, etc?
- Do you exercise care in the use of electricity? Do you refrain from loading outlets with too many appliances, using inappropriate fuses, and hanging electrical cords over nails or running them under carpets?
- Do you make certain that any electrical appliance you purchase is U.L. listed?

If you can answer "yes" to these questions, you're well on your way to a fire safe home.



Last fall, when I heard the news from the midwest that supplies of seed corn were going to be short, I knew prices would start climbing I asked my Stanford dealer about it, and he told me that the smartest thing for me to do was to order my NK corn early He told me that the people at Stanford shared my concern about higher prices — and they did something about it They authorized my dealer to give me price protection on my early NK order That meant that if the price of seed corn went up, I would pay the lower early-order price That sounded like more than a fair deal to me, so I ordered early And you know what? The price went up later, saving me $2 50 a bag

That's one of the reasons I'm going back to my Stanford-NK dealer now

Another reason is the big yield potential of Northrup-King hybrids NK corn took more than 80 first-place N C G A state championships in the last six years To me, that's convincing proof that NK hybrids are exactly what we need to get those high-profit yields from our corn acreage

My choice this year is NK's PX76 — the next great hybrid for my area For two years, it has been the most consistent high yielder in NK trials across the mid-Atlantic region You might need a mid-season corn on your farm, like PX 50A for grain or silage — or PX 20, an early corn with excellent standability, early spring vigor and fast dry-down

On top of a high-yielding NK corn hybrid, the kind of help I need now is in straight cash savings So I'm ordering my NK corn early again — this time to cash in on Stanford's big new early-order, early-pay discount deal

I like doing business with people who are always there with the kind of help I can really use That's why I'm staying with my Stanford dealer and NK corn

PennAg salutes research centennial

GETTYSBURG - PennAg Industries Association honored the 100th anniversary of the nation's agricultural research experiment stations in ceremonies at the association's 97th Convention held here September 18. The presentation was made by PennAg president Phillip M. Spalding, York and acknowledged by Dr. James M. Beattie, Dean of the College of Agriculture, at Penn State University.

Spalding recognized many successful research contributions of the Penn State agricultural institution ranging from animal nutrition and health to the development of a new commercial plant used in highway planting (Crown vetch) which PennDot officials estimate has saved taxpayers $1.6 million annually in control of run off, elimination of mowing and similar costs.

"PennAg firmly believes that only through the skills learned in research can our blessed natural resources be used in a way which will allow them to be preserved and to prosper," Spalding said.

In acknowledgement Beattie thanked the more than 300 agribusiness representatives attending the state-wide meeting not only for the tribute but also the past and continued support PennAg has given to agricultural research.

"Looking ahead, some of the problems we'll be studying are such things as land use, energy, improved farm income, and increased productivity for crops and livestock," said Dean Beattie.

Beattie also stressed the importance of research to the economy of the nation and the need for continued adequate funding.

NDC views ad restrictions as too harsh in detail

"As currently written, the proposed Trade Regulation Rule (TRR) on food advertising is too restrictive" and could serve to seriously hinder and complicate nutrition education for the consumer, says the National Dairy Council in comments sent to the Federal Trade Commission on September 16. Eight pages of specific reservations and concern were signed by NDC President M.F. Brink, Ph.-D., after approval by NDC's Board of Directors. The Board met in Chicago September 15-16 concurrent with Fall 1975 meetings of the United Dairy Industry Association, the American Dairy Association, and Dairy Research, Inc.

In particular, said NDC's comments, the "definition of 'advertisement' or 'advertising' should be worded so as to exclude nutrition education materials." NDC emphasized that NDC nutrition education materials, for example, are reviewed prior to printing and distribution by professionals within and outside of Dairy Council, and that these materials are used in education to help equip consumers to make wise food choices, not to promote particular brand-name products "for the direct commercial benefit of the advertiser."

NDC also took exception to a section of the TRR concerned with "emphatic nutrition claims," saying, "The 35 percent of U.S. RDA per serving threshold level is far too high for making emphatic nutrition claims . . . The threshold . . . should be lowered to 25 percent . . . For milk, this would allow 'emphatic claims' to be made for riboflavin, calcium, and vitamin D when added. Milk is traditionally cited as a 'good' source of these nutrients. If the proposed TRR were to be adopted, an emphatic claim could not be made for any nutrient in milk."

According to Dr. Brink, one of the major problems with the proposed TRR is the concept that a food be judged for its contribution to the U.S. RDA on a usual portion basis (for milk - one glass). By comparison, the Food and Drug Administration's Nutrition Labeling Regulations recognize that many foods are usually consumed several times a day and thus their contribution to the U.S. RDA (which are daily recommendations) should be judged accordingly.

Among its comments, NDC also took exception to FTC's concept that foods may be judged as "nutritionally equivalent." Said NDC: "No two foods are 'nutritionally equivalent' to one another." Foods may be similar as good sources of the same nutrients, but differences can be such that while "Two foods can be used interchangeably" in actual nutrition practice, no foods "should be allowed to calim nutritional equivalency."

Persons wishing to comment generally on the FTC proposed regulations may do so by writing to the Special Assistant Director for Rulemaking, Bureau of Consumer Protection, Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D.C. 20580 until ten days before commencement of public hearings. A date for public hearings has not yet been announced.

Lloyd joins Farmer's First

Mr. Lewis L. Lloyd, Landisville, has joined the staff of Farmers First Bank, Lititz, as an Estate Planning Officer at the Lancaster Shopping Center Office.

A graduate of Temple University School of Law with a J.D. in Law, Lloyd has maintained a general practice in Landisville. In addition to his law degree he holds a B.S. in Mechanical Engineering from Lafayette College and a M.S. in Engineering Science from Pennsylvania State University.

Previously he was a member of the Corporate Legal Staff of Certain-Teed Products Corporation, Valley Forge and for ten years prior was employed by RCA Corporation, Lancaster.

Prune Houseplants now

If summer growth has sent houseplants sprawling, they should either be supported more or trimmed and cut back. If there is room, and the extra growth can be managed, perhaps a wise choice is to give it extra support, says Robert Nuss, Extension horticulturist at The Pennsylvania State University.

Just plain coat hangers concealed among the greenery make excellent supports, he says. They're readily available around any home. And they're made of a metal that will not harm plants. Do not use wires of metal such as copper or those with galvanized surfaces. They may deposit metals into the soil that will harm the plants.

Trellis support made of plastic will also not harm the plant. And woods of all sorts can be used - from finished pieces to sturdy driftwood and other natural branches.

When arranging vines over these supports don't worry about facing the leaves the right direction. The plant will take care of that itself as the leaves gradually turn out to face the light.

The Extension horticulturist says if a plant needs trimmed or shaped, don't be afraid to trim just as an outdoor plant would be trimmed. But be sure to cut with absolutely clean pruning shears or a knife. Disease can be spread with blades that are coated with months of cutting.

Crop Situation

By Dieter Krieg

The latest localized update on the crop situation was made during the past week or so while driving through parts of Lancaster, Chester, and Dauphin Counties. Most of this report is based on observations only, with a few short interviews thrown in for good measure. Taking one crop at a time, here is a summary of what was seen and heard.

CORN

Not all of the silos are filled yet, but the majority opinion seems to be that silage corn was "average" this year. There are some reports of "really tall corn" which comes as no suprise considering how it was growing this summer. The crop has lost most of its rich green color during the past two weeks and the recent rains are leaving stalks looking rather ragged in some areas.

Corn picking has started for a few farmers; in fact one York Countain was at it in early September. A fellow in the Lititz area pulled his two-row picker through the fields last week. Early yields indicate a good crop, although not as fantastic as what we were led to believe during the growing season.

Pennsylvania's 1975 production of corn for grain is forecast at 88,560,000 bushels based on conditions September 1, according to the Crop Reporting Service. This represents a one percent decrease from 1974. Yield is expected to be 82.0 bushels per acre.

SOYBEANS

The once dark-green fields of soybeans are turning to a rich yellow color and leaves are beginning to drop off here and there.

Ken Rutt, near Quarryville, has about 110 acres of soybeans out this year and says they look as good as last year. "You can tell by counting the pods on a stalk," he explained. The average is about 80 to 120 pods to a stalk.

Now in his fifth year as a soybean producer, Rutt expects to harvest his beans in about two weeks. Last year, when he had 165 acres planted in soybeans, his yields averaged 40 bushels per acre with some fields going as high as 50 bushels per acre.

Rutt double-crops some of his fields between barley and beans, and uses no commercial fertilizer. "Beans require lime," he explained, "as long as the pH level is okay, fertilizer is okay." Soybean fields are rotated with corn from year to year.

Weeds appear to be more plentiful in soybean fields this year then they have been in the past. Although that shouldn't create much of a problem, and the soybeans themselves look good, growers say the poor weed control is due to too much rain during the time fields were sprayed.

Rutt reported some spray damage in his fields where the patterns overlapped but wasn't too concerned because although the plants were initially burned off - they came back with twice as many pods as what is "average." He thought something in the spray must have stimulated their growth.

Another observation made by Rutt is that soybeans show no ill effect from flooding. He said he had one field under water for three weeks and the crop wasn't hurt. That may help to explain why poor soybean fields are rather scarce in the area.

TOBACCO

Tobacco cutting continues in Lancaster County - that is it did until the rains came along. Most of the crop is in, and what is still out looks a little thin compared to earlier harvested fields. That appears to be especially true for tobacco fields in eastern portions of the County.

HAY

In an earlier issue of this paper, it was reported that good quality hay may be scarce this winter. If that situation has changed - it's changed for the worse. The two main reasons for the bleak outlook continue to be the relatively meager cuttings and the interfering weather. Windrows looked very thin on most fields last week.

TOMATOES

The state crop reporting service is estimating an average yield of 15.5 tons per acre for tomato farmers in the Commonwealth. That is considerably lower than the 20 or more tons per acre reported by growers in southeastern and south-central sections of the state. Harvesting was still going on strong until the rains came.

Like a Log

Why did the girl put her bed in the fireplace? She wanted to sleep like a log. Of course there were three boys sharing the same bed. It was so crowded one got out and tried to sleep on the floor. After an hour or so one of his friends told him he might as well come back. "There's lots more room now," he said.

Letters to the Editor

(Editor's Note:) In the past few months, there has been considerable discussion as to the position of the farm women in relation to a group (American Agri-Women) which was organized last November in Milwaukee. The following letter is concerned with these groups and will hopefully clear up some of the questions concerning them.

Dear Editor:

To clear up any misunderstanding about the relationship of American Agri-Women with the National Farm Women's Forum sponsored by Farm Wife News, Milwaukee, WI, I wrote to the FWN convention coordinator Ann Kaiser.

At the Regional and York County Ladies' Day Out for Pennsylvania Farmers' Association members, PFA representatives were throwing out some fairly negative remarks when York County ladies asked for time to announce their plans to organize a flight trip for any area women wishing to attend the second annual Farm Women's Forum in Milwaukee.

Here is the statement from Mrs. Kaiser: "Last year, as many of you will recall, a coalition group called American Agri-Women was formed at a meeting the last day of the Forum" Technically, it was the morning following the close of the Forum.

"Questions have arisen over the connection of Farm Wife News, the National Farm Women's Forum and American Agri-Women. Hopefully I can clear up any confusion with a bit of explanation.

"The staff of Farm Wife News came up with the idea for the publication to sponsor the National Farm Women's Forum last November as the highlight of "National Farm Wife Month" (November).

"This being our first attempt at planning such an event, we contacted women in various farm organizations, telling them of our plans and asking for their ideas on program contents

"One of those we contacted was Laura Hauser, an organizer of Women for the Survival of Agriculture in Michigan, one of the groups which promoted the American Agri-Women coalition.

"Laura said the Michigan women had been wanting to set up a meeting to bring together similar groups from other states and see if they could cooperate on some projects.

"Since FWN was planning the Forum which would draw women from all over the country, Laura felt it would be convenient to have their meeting in Milwaukee at the same time.

"They arranged for a room at the Forum headquarters hotel for the day after our two major days of Forum programming. It was at this meeting the coalition was formed.

"By planning the Forum, Farm Wife News provided an opportunity for farm and ranch women to meet and share ideas.

"American Agri-Women was one of the results. But beyond providing this kind of opportunity, Farm Wife News has no special connection with American Agri-Women other than a healthy interest in its activities, as we have in the activities of the Porkettes, Farm Bureau Women, etc."

Thirty-seven women from the York - Lancaster area attended the first Forum last November. They attended programs for the rural women who's a farm business partner, an agricultural spokesman and homemaker. Not everyone was interested in the coalition meeting Thursday; only five attended it.

But a nucleus of women from York County Farmers' Association came back with ideas to promote agriculture which led to setting up extensive farm displays at the York Mall to celebrate National Ag Day in March and National Food Day in April at York College. They used the knowledge and motivation gained from the forum to work within their existing organization.

So it was just a little bit too much to take when we were put down for supporting what has turned out to be a worthwhile experience which we want to repeat this year and offer to our friends within Farm Bureau in these two counties.

Personally, I am an avid supporter of American Agri-Women. Their goals are that of Farm Bureau which I also whole-heartedly support as county information director and family farm member. I hope to see many more Farm Bureau women involved in the organization of this national coalition which can work with all farmers to promote and defend agriculture in this day and age.

But regardless of anyone's opinion about AAW, there is so much to learn and share at Farm Women's Forum by itself that I think every farm woman who can get away November 10-12 should consider joining the group being organized by Mrs. Harold Gross, Manchester R2.

Oley Valley Fair winners listed

OLEY - The annual Oley Valley Community Fair took place September 18, 19 and 20 on the Oley Fire Company Grounds in Oley. Although the weather was generally unpleasant with much rain on Thursday the crowds and exhibitors were not deterred greatly.

Two York County youths win state 4-H awards

UNIVERSITY PARK — Two York County young adults, who have compiled outstanding records in 4-H work, were named state contest winners in the 1975 4-H National Awards program

They are Karen Raubenstine, 18, of Hanover R1, winner in the bread category; and Tim Eisenhart, 16, of Thomasville R1, state contest winner in petroleum power.

Karen and Tim will receive expense-paid trips to National 4-H Congress in Chicago, November 30 - December 4 and compete for awards at the National level

Support of the bread project is provided by Standard Brands Incorporated and petroleum power by the Amoco Foundation, Inc.

Mr Carroll L Howes, associate 4-H-youth division leader at Penn State University, who announced the selections, said they were judged on the basis of project work, leadership ability, and participation in county and state activities.

They were picked from among the 145,000 youth who annually take part in the Extension Service educational 4-H program.

Karen Raubenstine

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Raubenstine, Karen is a 1975 graduate of the South Western Senior High School. She has been a 4-H member for nine years.

A member of the Hanover 4-H Club and West Manheim 4-H Rifle Club, she served as president, secretary, news reporter, and treasurer and assisted with club activities and events as a teen leader for the past five years.

The state bread contest winner completed projects in mealtime magic, food when company comes, pack a meal, meals for moderns, clothing, tasty snacks, home improvement, teen leadership, riflery, gardening, photography, and candlemaking.

Locally, Karen participated in the 4-H demonstration day, roundup, day camp, Rural Life Sunday, exchange program, and dress revue.

She also took part in the Regional 4-H Dress Revue, Regional 4-H Teen Leaders Retreat, Regional 4-H Demonstration Day, York Interstate Fair, Pennsylvania 4-H Leadership Congress, State 4-H Achievement Days, Pennsylvania Farm Show, Citizenship Short Course, and Pennsylvania Association of Farmer Cooperatives Summer Youth Institute.

Karen was selected as the Outstanding 4-H Girl and

Tim Eisenhart

Outstanding Secretary in York County and was a Keystone 4-H Award winner in bread and clothing categories. She won a 4-H medal for her bread demonstration in the state contest.

Commenting on the values of the educational youth program, Karen said: "4-H has given me skills and has prepared me for a career."

Tim Eisenhart

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Rodney C. Eisenhart, Tim is a junior at the Spring Grove Area Senior High School. He has been a 4-H member for eight years.

A member of the Thomasville 4-H Community Club, Central 4-H Tractor Club, and the York County 4-H Dairy Club, he served as president, vice president, and was a teen leader for first-year tractor club members

The state petroleum power contest winner completed projects in tractor maintenance, small engines, bicycle, dairy, gardening, automotive, health, and teen leadership.

He took part in the York County 4-H Roundup and Demonstration Days, 4-H Exchange Program, Regional 4-H Teen Leaders Retreat, Pennsylvania 4-H Leadership Congress, State 4-H Achievement Days, State 4-H Capital Days, Pennsylvania Association of Farmer Cooperatives Summer Youth Institute, and Citizenship Short Course.

He was selected as the Outstanding Junior 4-H Boy in 1972, Outstanding 4-H Boy in 1974, and Distinguished Junior Holstein Boy in 1973.

"4-H has given me the chance to go on trips and meet many people that otherwise would not have been possible," Tim said.

They are two of 40 Commonwealth 4-H members selected as state contests winners in the various project categories.

Record corn crop seen in Maryland

Maryland's 1975 corn production is now estimated to be a record crop of 47,850,000 bushels with an average yield of 87 bushels per acre.

This prediction, based on crop conditions surveyed as of September list, is even higher than the August 1st estimate for Maryland corn of 46,750,000 bushels. The increase of 1,100,000 bushels The increase of 1,100,000 bushels comes through a hike in the average per acre figure which was set at 85 bushels in the earlier estimate.

Good weather during August is credited with helping the crop. The corn prediction for Maryland was released today by the Maryland Delaware Crop Reporting service as part of the national crop estimates release by USDA.

Maryland had been upping its corn production for the past three years showing million-plus bushel increases. The 73 crop was 42.5 million bushels; the 1974 crop, despite a damaging frost increased by 2.4 million bushels and now, 1975's production is expected to top 1974's by 2 9 million bushels

On the bad news side of the picture, Maryland's 1975 tobacco crop is still estimated to come in at 25.3 million pounds due to bad weather experienced in July The 1975 harvest will be some 4,940,000 pounds under 1974, and 6,200,000 pounds less than in 1973.

Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Young D. Hance, in commenting on the bumper corn crop estimate for the state, said, "I am thankful for the good weather which has helped the crop but share the deep concern farmers have over finding a fair market and fair price for their big harvest

"I hope that these good crop estimates will encourage the federal government to open the export markets for American grain and reassure consumers in the United States that there will be plenty of grain for our domestic needs," Mr. Hance said.

THE EFFICIENCY FACTOR

helps you get hogs to market weeks earlier

In tests comparing the performance of pigs fed AUREO S. P. 250 with unmedicated pigs, those fed AUREO S. P. 250 showed 31% faster daily gains and 10% better feed efficiency.

With gains like this pigs start ed on AUREO S P 250 at 15 pounds would reach 75 pounds three weeks before those not receiving any feed additive

But fast gains are only part of the story Besides improving rate of growth and feed efficiency AUREO S P 250 helps control bacterial scours reduces the incidence of cervical abscesses and maintains weight gains in the presence of atrophic rhinitis In addition it aids in preventing these diseases during time of stress

And you can improve your pigs efficiency still further by use of TRAMISOL dewormer TRAMISOL is the only wormer that controls lungworms as well as round worms and nodular worms

Apply for antlerless license Sept. 29

Antlerless deer license applications will be accepted from Pennsylvania resident hunters beginning on September 29, under rules and regulations adopted by the Game Commission.

Under the Game Law, country treasurers are designated as the issuing agents for antlerless licenses. The Game Law provides that antlerless deer licenses "shall be issued without restriction or regard to the county residence of the Pennsylvania applicant."

Basically, guidelines established last year for receiving applications and for issuing antlerless deer licenses will be followed in 1975.

The Game Commission's rules and regulations on the issuance of antlerless deer licenses follow:

1. Only the original antlerless deer license application form issued as a part of the hunter's license shall be valid for making application for an antlerless deer license.

2. No person shall make application for more than one antlerless deer license under any circumstances.

3. The antlerless license application form issued with the hunting license shall not be transferable or used by any other person.

4. County treasurers shall accept applications for antlerless licenses by mail only starting with the opening of treasurers' offices for business on September 29.

5. Applications submitted by mail shall be in accordance with the following regulations:

a. Limited to one application per envelope.

b. Name and legal home address of the applicant shall be placed on the outside top left corner of the front of the envelope.

c. The words "Antlerless Deer License Application" shall be affixed on the outside lower left hand corner of the front of the envelope.

d. Remittance shall be only in the form of check or money order in the amount of $3.35, made payable to "County Treasurer." The remittance includes postage.

e. Person applying for a license must complete (type or print for mailing) all three sections of the application.

6. County treasures shall issue antlerless licenses by mail only no earlier than the opening of their respective offices for business on October 6 All licenses shall be mailed to successful applicants no later than November 14.

If the county quota of antlerless licenses has not been exhausted by November 14, applications may continue to be received and licenses issued until the supply is depleted.

7 A county treasurer electing to conduct an impartial, random, public drawing observed by sportsmen and other interested persons to select applications for the issuance of antlerless licenses may do so if the first six steps listed previously are followed and if the county treasurer announces the date, time and place of the drawing to all available news media in the area at least one week in advance of the drawing. Such drawing shall be conducted between October 1 and October 4, both dated inclusive.

Thus far, the following county treasurers have notified the Game Commission that they will hold drawings for antlerless licenses on these dates listed: Berks, Dauphin, Franklin, Schuylkill, October 1; Bucks and Lehigh, October 2; Jefferson, Lebanon, Westmoreland, October4.

8. County treasurers shall return all unsuccessful applications at the earliest possible date, but in any event no later than October 14, in order that the applicant may re-apply to another county which may have licenses available.

9. Any unsuccessful applicant whose application has been returned may, by changing the county designation in which he or she wishes to hunt, re-apply in another county which has unsold licenses available.

This year, applications for antlerless deer licenses shall not be accepted from nonresidents of Pennsylvania by any county treasurer prior to November 15, and no antlerless deer license shall be issued to any nonresident of Pennsylvania prior to November 15.

Alien residents of Pennsylvania will be considered as regular residents when applying for antlerless licenses in 1975, while an alien nonresident will be considered as a regular nonresident when applying for an antlerless license.

The Game Commission is aware of the possibility that some sportsmen who may wish to hunt as a group may not all obtain antlerless licenses for a particular county But since the antlerless season is essentially a deer management tool, not all hunters' wishes can be accommodated during an antlerless season as is done in buck season.

A father or mother who is an unsuccessful applicant may accompany a son or daughter if the parent does not carry a firearm or bow and arrow or drive deer, and the same is true if the son or daughter is the unsuccessful applicant.

This year, there will be 421,300 antlerless deer licenses available in Pennsylvania, compared to 389,650 authorized last year

Lunch week scheduled

"You Are What You Eat" is the theme for National School Lunck Week, October 12 through 18. Highlighting this re-dedication to better student lunching will be Universal Menu Day, Wednesday, October 15 when 25 million students served by 88,000 school lunch programs will eat the same "All-American" lunch. And what a good lunch it will be. This year's menu includes a cheeseburger, crispy potatoes, coleslaw, peaches and milk ... truly an example of a well-balanced nutritious meal. Officially known as the "Type A Lunch" by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the American School Food Service Association, it furnishes at least 1-3 or more of the Recommended Dietary Allowances of the nutrients that girls and boys need each day.

Robert C. McKinley, President of Dairy Council Inc., Southampton, Pa., reminds parents that "well-nourished individuals function better than poorly nourished ones ... and particularly in the case of students, the food they eat each day contributes to the way they look, the way they feel, and how well they grow and learn."

Nutritionists are well aware that no one food contains all of the nutrients needed by the body. That's why servings from each of the basic four food groups are recommended as daily fare. Meat, fish and poultry, milk and other dairy products, fruits and vegetables, and breads and cereals make up the basic food groups. In combination they provide all of the protein, vitamins, minerals, fats and carbohydrates necessary to build and sustain good health.

Dairy Council is pleased to support the National School Lunch Program because it provides a lesson in nutrition and an opportunity for students, parents, and teachers to learn the value - and reap the benefits - of good nutrition and balanced meals.

Conservation Notes

Lebanon Countians Apply for Conservation Assistance

The landowners requests for conservation assistance were accepted at the September meeting of the Lebanon County Conservation District board of directors. Requesting conservation assistance were the following: FFA Cedar Crest Chapter, Cornwall 15 acres; Herman Reist, R1, Lebanon, 218 acres; Calvin D. Spitler, 1695 Quentin Rd., Lebanon, 29 acres; J. C. Ice Skating Pond, 3 acres; Millcreek Road & Gun Club, 54 acres; Floyd Halteman, R2, Lebanon, 100 acres; Henry S. Heagy, 1971 Water St., Lebanon, 8 acres; T. B. Backenstose, Hershey, 93 acres; Marvin R. Kaylor, R2, Annville, 165 acres; and S. W. Ostrich, R3, Wernersville, 140 acres.

By implementing these conservation plans these landowners will be in compliance with the Clean Streams Law. Mr. Karl Hellerick, or a member of his staff, will contact the landowners to discuss their farming program before planning conservation assistance.

In other business the topic of Storm Water Management, or the method of limiting the rate of storm water runoff from building developments was discussed. With a storm water management policy the district will be better able to recommend action to municipalities and developers in installing storm water management facilities.

Edward Keener, Karl Hellerick, Thomas Johnston and Clair Gerberich will be examining a Storm Water Management Program in another area, and reporting back to the board at the October meeting.

Mr. Philip Feather, Chairman of the P. L. 566 Flood Control Committee, reported on a field inspection of the Quittapahilla Creek in the Annville-Cleona area. He stated the committee will meet with state legislators and Dr. Maurice Goddard, Secretary of DER, to enlist their support and aid for the local flood control project.

Mr. Phil Feather was appointed delegate to represent the Lebanon County Conservation District at the Annual Conference at Valley Forge. This October 6th to 8th conference brings together conservation district directors from across the state. Resource conservation problems of a state wide nature and a joint meeting with the State Conservation Commission round out the agenda for this yearly annual conference.

Service Forester, Paul Troutman, reported on the Gypsy Mother Control Program for 1975.

Karl Hellerick, SCS, reported conservation plans were prepared for the following: Richard Boyer, R1, Pine Grove; Jeff Waltermyer, R1, Jonestown; Naomi Miley and Etherl Wenger, Rexmont; Joe Schott, R5, Lebanon; Alex Hawryluk, Lebanon; George Bowman, Lebanon; Clarence Mase, R5, Lebanon; Robert Bender, R2, Annville; J. Ralph Smith, Palmyra; Lew Bachman, R1, Newmanstown, Ed Krebs, R1, Grantville; and Phebe Reed, R1, Fredericksburg.

The following cooperators installed 25,640 LF of subsurface drains: Ed Edris, R1, Fredericksburg; Dan Reitz, Lebanon; Fred Otte, Poughkeepsie, N.Y.; Raymond Trayer, Hershey; B. Krause; Don Blouch, R2, Jonestown; Larry Moyer, R1, Jonestown; Raymond Boeshore, R1, Fredericksburg; H. Bomgardner, R1, Annville; Steven Becker, R3, Lebanon; and Victor Zeigler, R2, Myerstown.

Charles Grumbine, R1, Richland and Donald Blouch, R2, Jonestown laid out 43 acres of strips. Ponds were completed with Charles Grumbine and Louis Vasity, R2, Jonestown.

Mr. Hellerick reported several farmers are using the silo filler or forage chopper to seed rye on standing corn.

G. Heilman Moving

Barbara Whipple (Mrs. Grant Heilman in private life), Sego Sego Road, inspects a print she has pulled from her press. The well known artist, who works in various media, will be opening a studio in Buena Vista, Colo. when she and her husband move there next summer.

narrow and dissatisfying life. There's something important about being surrounded by non-human life. I can only cite cities, which are in terrible problems, and one reason is that everything in them is so unreal."

"The young people seem to feel close to what I'm trying to say," he went on. They sense the dangers of over-population, pollution, crowded conditions, and they're willing to live on less rather than stay in urban areas, he said. Some older people are, too — big corporations are feeling this right now, and many are decentralizing and moving out of the big cities, he added.

Small towns — and more of them — are part of the answer, Heilman believes. He cites the relatively new towns of Columbia, Md. and Reston, near Washington, D.C., as examples of how this can be made to work.

He pointed to other small towns in the west and mid-west that were once thriving communities, now practically ghost towns. The young people moved out, but would love to go back now if there was something there to support them, he said. Some of the new generation are heading toward these places, turning their backs on the urban areas of the east, depending on their talents to trade and barter for a living, sparse though it might be.

Ag economist offers views on Russian Grain moratorium

Whether the U.S. sells additional grain to Russia or continues the present moratorium on such sales, domestic consumer prices seem likely to climb higher in the next few months. But the expected rise could probably be lessened by lifting the moratorium when it expires on Oct. 15.

So declared John L. Crothers, Jr., an Extension grain marketing and transportation specialist at the University of Maryland in College Park.

"Let's be realistic," Crothers says in a prepared statement. "Cutting off further grain sales to the Soviet Union would probably increase U.S. consumer prices and inflation faster than if the sales were allowed. Just how do you isolate consumers and grain markets in this country from world market influences?

"Apparently, the U.S.S.R. must buy grain somewhere. The Russians evidently have cash to do their buying, because it is now required by law for U.S. grain purchases. (Trade Act of 1973, which resulted from the Russian grain deal of 1972. It applies, however, only to government credits - not commercial credit).

"Buying from the U.S. - the world's largest grain exporter - would make ripples of less magnitude in the price structure than purchases from nations having smaller total grain supplies.

"If nations other than Russia need grain and are squeezed out of other markets by the Soviet purchases, their demand will have to come to the U.S. anyway. And it is doubtful if these buyers will be carrying cash.

"Further Soviet purchases from the U.S. will cause some 'demand-pull'on world prices. But that effect will be accentuated by buying from nations having smaller grain stocks. Here are two good reasons:

"1. In a 'supply-vs.-demand market' where competition reigns, smaller total grain stocks would be rocked harder by Russia's massive purchase than by sales of smaller lots to more buyers.

"2. Practically every major grain-exporting country outside the U.S. has some form of government grain agency - such as the Canadian Wheat Board - that handles export sales. Between the supply-demand picture and the squeeze on Russia, such agencies would be able to exact a higher price. This 'piling-on' cumulative action could boost the price still further in order to grab the greatest possbile return for a given country's production.

"In the world market, foreign prices would temporarily be pushed higher than U.S. grain prices. Domestic grain would then flow out in the export trade to obtain the higher price prevailing abroad. As a result, our grain would continue to move out until the domestic price equalled the world price.

"In the end, both the U.S. and other countries would have grain prices higher than those arising from Soviet purchases in the U.S. That would mean even higher consumer prices, more inflation and the opening of yet another round of spiralling costs."

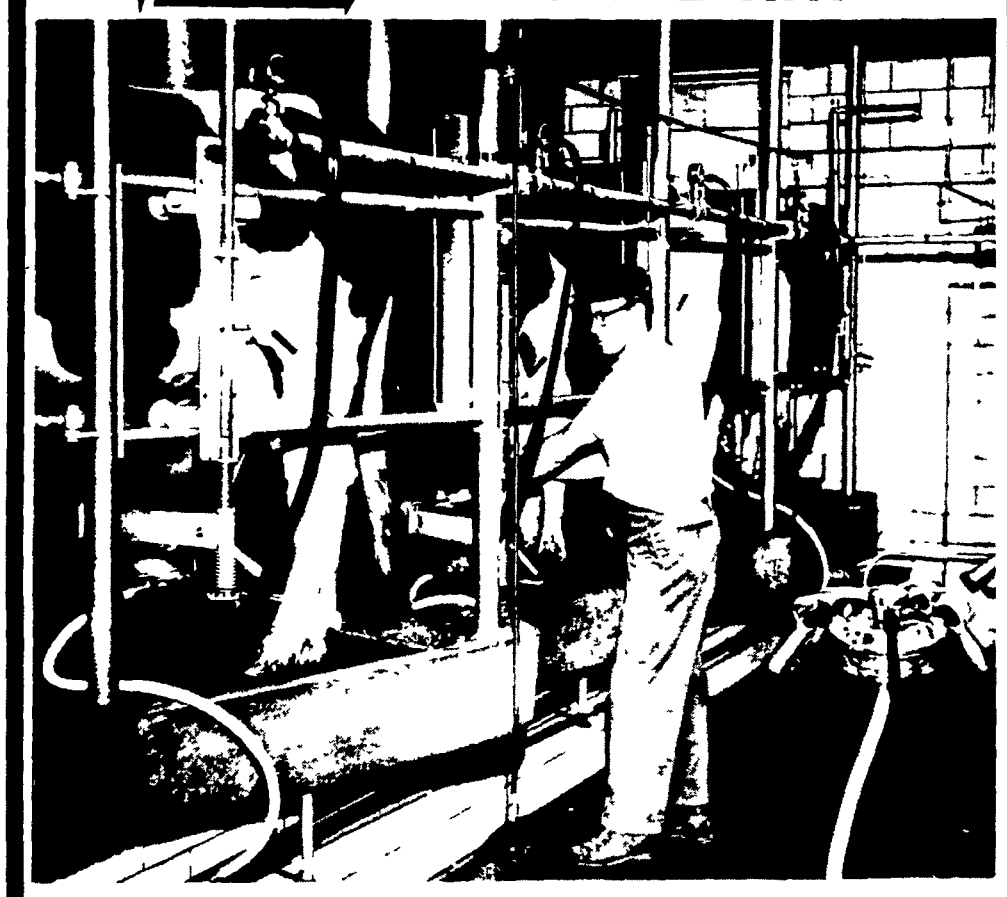
SURGE LEADS THE WAY



The compact and clean working area of this Surge Saw tooth Herringbone milking parlor aids this dairyman to do a better job of cow milking A low mounted milk line and milker units at each stall aids efficiency

Why The Trend To Milking Parlors?

The past decade has witnessed a decisive trend toward milking parlors in new and remodeled dairy constructions The ability to expand one's herd, yet use the same milking facility .he adaptability of automatic equipment to mechanize the milk handling and cleaning tasks has contributed to the popularity of milking parlors.

LABOR, however, is the key factor in most dairymen's decision to build a milking parlor It is easier to do a better job of cow milking in a milking parlor . . and to do it faster. The stooping, squatting, lifting and carrying has been taken out of dairying Working conditions and man-hour output are improved through a multitude of comforts and conveniences which can be built into milking parlors You can afford better hired help and with less labor turnover. Or, if you or your family plan to do the milking, you'll enjoy it more and take more pride in doing a good job

TEST COW CHOW

A Super Package of Energy and Protein Gives it Milk Making Power

PURINA TEST COW

is the milking ration good Dairymen are looking for.

- High Quality Ingredients
- Low In Fiber
- Fortified with the proper balance of vitamins and minerals
- Available at different protein levels
- Easy to feed

Test Cow was first developed and tested with the 150-cow herd at Purina's Dairy Research Center

PURINA RESEARCH EXPERIMENT	Group 1	Group 2
Avg. Milk in Previous Lactation	14,024 lbs.	14,891 lbs.
Avg. Milk in Test Lactation	13,899 lbs	16,958 lbs.
Difference after Full Lactation	−125 lbs.	+2,067 lbs.

This early Purina test was with two comparable groups of cows Group 1 was continued on a regular top quality milking ration Group 2 was switched to a high energy ration The 2,067 pound increase proved the value of high energy milking rations

TOP DAIRYMEN FEED TEST COW

Many leading dairymen have tried Purina Test Cow and proved that it helps increase milk production. Four of these were leaders in their state DHIA standings, gaining the top position in milk production while feeding Test Cow

Here's what other dairymen say about Test Cow.

1) "Test Cow is a wonderful feed When we started on Test Cow we had a herd average of 15,592 pounds of milk with 38 cows and 619 pounds of fat. A year later we were at 16,490 pounds of milk and 638 pounds of fat."

Wisconsin

2.) "Test Cow is the best milking ration we can find. If there's a better one, we'd be feeding it."

Tennessee

3.) "My cows wait for Test Cow to be fed. I can feed less of it than a ground ration and still get more milk. Butterfat has gone up and the cow's body condition has improved."

Minnesota

4.) "In less than a year we have gone from a rolling herd average of 14,061 pounds of milk on 145 cows to 15,349 pounds and have increased butterfat from 543 to 570 pounds. We're really happy with Test Cow."
